Committee III: Faculty Administrative Staff Personnel

Information Item:

A) In an effort to better align them with the campus mission statement and with Board of Regents policy changes, FASP presents these draft revisions to the UWG Promotion and Tenure Policies (FH 103.0302).

103.0302 Specific Minimum Criteria for Promotion

Foreword. Four criteria for tenure are prescribed by Board of Regents Policies, 803.09: superior teaching, demonstrated excellence in instruction; research or academic achievement, as appropriate to the institution; outstanding service to the institution, profession or community; and professional growth and development. According to Regents' Policies, noteworthy achievement should be expected in at least two areas. For employment or promotion to Associate Professor or Professor, one must have demonstrated some achievement in all four areas. For those faculty members whose primary responsibilities do not include teaching, the evaluation should focus on excellence in those areas (e.g., research, administration) where the faculty member's major responsibilities lie (See BOR 803.07).

Personnel holding faculty rank should be aware that "some achievement" is a relative term. Considerable, even noteworthy, achievement in teaching; research or academic achievement; service to the institution, profession or community; and professional growth and development may thus be necessary to be successful in being approved for promotion.

As the institution becomes more diverse in the types of programs offered and clientele served, it might reasonably have different levels of expectation for faculty in different programs. For faculty members teaching at the graduate level, contributions should include ones that reflect a competitive selection process. All faculty members at the University of West Georgia, however, are expected to participate actively in the intellectual life of their discipline and their profession. This may take the form of research and professional development activities which involve the practical application of existing knowledge or the creation of new knowledge. All faculty members are expected to have a research and professional development agenda, to make progress annually in addressing it, and to maintain proper professional ethics. (see Section 109) Below are outlined specific MINIMUM requirements by rank for meeting each criterion:

A. To Be Promoted to Senior Lecturer

Noteworthy achievement in areas 1 and 2 is required. There must also be some achievement in areas 3 and 4.

1. Teaching. Demonstration of potential for effectiveness in teaching with evidence from student evaluations (See Section 103.06) and from additional sources (See 103.0302,E,1).
2. Research or Academic Achievement. Beyond a required graduate degree in the discipline, demonstration of significant contributions to the candidate's discipline and a strong likelihood of continuing effectiveness (See 103.0302,E,2) .
3. Service to the Institution, Profession or Community. Demonstration of potential for effectiveness as shown by successful, collegial service on departmental, college-wide, institutional or system-wide committees (See 103.0302,E,3) .
4. Professional Growth and Development. Demonstration of efforts by the candidate to continually expand knowledge or improve skill sets related to teaching, research or service (See 103.0302,E,4).

B. To Be Promoted to Assistant Professor

Noteworthy achievement in areas 1 and 2 is required. There must also be some achievement in areas 3 and 4.

1. Teaching. Demonstration of potential for effectiveness in teaching with evidence from student evaluations (see Section 103.06) and from additional sources (See 103.0302,E,1).
2. Research or Academic Achievement. Beyond a terminal degree in the discipline, demonstration of significant contributions to the candidate's discipline and a strong likelihood of continuing effectiveness (See 103.0302,E,2). Those holding academic rank in the Library must earn a second graduate degree.
3. Service to the Institution, Profession or Community. Demonstration of potential for effectiveness as shown by successful, collegial service on departmental, college-wide, institutional or system-wide committees (See 103.0302,E,3).
4. Professional Growth and Development. Demonstration of efforts by the candidate to continually expand knowledge or improve skill sets related to teaching, research or service (See 103.0302,E,4).

C. To Be Promoted to Associate Professor

In addition to noteworthy achievement in two areas, some achievement in all four areas is required (See 103.0302.Forward).

1. Teaching. Demonstration of significant contributions as a teacher and a strong likelihood of continuing effectiveness in teaching with evidence from student evaluations (See Section 103.06) and from additional sources (See 103.0302,E,1).
2. Research or Academic Achievement. Demonstration of significant contributions to the candidate's discipline and a strong likelihood of continuing effectiveness (See 103.0302,E,2).
3. Service to the Institution, Profession or Community. Demonstration of significant contributions in such service and a strong likelihood of continuing effectiveness as shown by successful, collegial service on departmental, college-wide, institutional or systemwide committees (See 103.0302,E,3) .
4. Professional Growth and Development. Demonstration of efforts by the candidate to continually expand knowledge or improve skill sets related to teaching, research or service (See 103.0302,E,4).

D. To Be Promoted to Professor

In addition to noteworthy achievement in two areas, some achievement in all four areas is required (See 103.0302.Forward).

1. Teaching. Demonstration of a clear and convincing record of a high level of sustained effectiveness with evidence from student evaluations (See Section 103.06) and from additional (See 103.0302,E,1).
2. Research or Academic Achievement. Demonstration of a clear and convincing record of emerging stature as regional, national, or international authority within the candidate's discipline, and/or a clear and convincing record of a high level of sustained effectiveness in the candidate's discipline (See 103.0302,E,2).
3. Service to the Institution, Profession or Community. Demonstration of a clear and convincing record of a high level of sustained effectiveness as shown by successful, collegial service on departmental, college-wide, institutional or system-wide committees or service to the profession or community (See 103.0302,E,3).
4. Professional Growth and Development. Demonstration of efforts by the candidate to continually expand knowledge or improve

103.0302 E. Evidentiary Sources Relevant to Promotion

1. Teaching

The University of West Georgia values quality teaching. Aligned with the goals established in the university's mission are a number of activities related to teaching in which evidentiary sources can be framed. These include 1) faculty-directed student research and professional activities that complement classroom learning; 2) faculty research, scholarship, and creative endeavors that contribute to quality instruction; 3) systematic investigation of teaching and student learning that fosters innovation in teacher, professional, and pre-professional preparation; and 4) the use and exploration of existing and emerging technologies that improve opportunities for student learning.

Along with evidence from student evaluations, evidentiary sources for the area of teaching include, but are not limited to, the following:

- a. Honors or special recognitions for teaching accomplishments (e.g., successful teaching in the UWG Honors Program, teaching awards).
- b. Letters from former students attesting to the candidate's instructional abilities.
- c. Successful direction of individual student work (e.g., faculty-directed student research, independent projects, theses, dissertations, artistic projects or performances, exit papers.)
- d. Effectiveness as shown by peer evaluation.
- e. Scholarship related to one's teaching that focuses on student learning and that is well grounded in the sources and resources appropriate to the field.
- f. Successful development of courses.

- g. Development of effective curricula and/or instructional methods, including, but not limited to, the examination of existing and emerging technologies for the purpose of improving student learning.

2. Research or Academic Achievement

The University of West Georgia values the contributions its faculty makes through research and academic achievement. Aligned with the goals established in the university's mission are activities related to research or academic achievement in which evidentiary sources can be framed. These include the attainment of graduate or terminal degrees in the discipline and faculty research, scholarship, and creative endeavors that 1) promote knowledge, 2) enhance professional development, 3) contribute to quality instruction, and 4) provide for significant student involvement and field-based experience.

Evidentiary sources for the area of research or academic achievement include, but are not limited to, the following:

- a Attainment of a graduate degree in the discipline.
- b Attainment of a terminal degree in the discipline.
- c Presentations before learned societies and professional organizations.
- d Scholarly publications.
- e Reviews of a candidate's publications or creative work by persons of recognized competence in the discipline.
- f Receipt of competitively awarded grants for teaching, research or creative activity, or service.
- g Successful performances in significant recitals or productions in which such performances are invited or selected after competitive review.
- h Successful exhibitions of creative works in which such works are invited or selected after competitive review.
- i Development of scholarly applications of technology (e.g., laboratory devices, computer software packages or programs, videotapes).
- j Consultation that involves scholarly application of professional expertise.

3. Service

The University of West Georgia is committed to service for the public good. Aligned with the goals established in the university's mission are activities related to institutional and public service in which evidentiary sources can be framed. These include 1) a broad range of public service activities and proactive partnerships that: promote effective utilization of human and natural resources; contribute to economic, social, and technical development; improve teaching quality and student learning in P12 schools; and enhance the quality of life within the University's scope of influence; and 2) activities that increase opportunities for students' academic success and personal development or that enhance the climate of campus life.

Evidentiary sources for the area of service include, but are not limited to, the following:

- a Successful development of service programs or projects.
- b Effective service-related consultation work or technical assistance.
- c Election or appointment to offices in professional organizations, successful committee work and important service to state, regional, national or international professional associations and learned societies, including editorial work.
- d Effective advisement of student organizations.
- e Successful counseling/advising of students.

- f Successful service on local, statewide, regional, national, or international levels in community-service organizations (e.g., committees, boards, panels).
- g Honors, awards, and special recognitions for service to the institution or the community.
- h Significant contributions to the improvement of student, faculty, or community life.
- i Successful mentoring of colleagues.

4. Professional Growth and Development

The University is committed to the professional development of its faculty. Opportunities for intellectual and personal development of the faculty are foundational to the University’s mission. Therefore, the University recognizes the efforts of the faculty to continually expand their knowledge and improve their skill sets, and it identifies specific evidentiary sources aligned with professional growth and development.

Evidentiary sources for the area of professional growth and development include, but are not limited to, the following:

- a Presentations before learned societies and professional organizations.
- b Honors and awards for research, scholarship, or other creative activities.
- c Reviews of a candidate's publications or creative work by persons of recognized competence in the discipline.
- d Receipt of competitively awarded fellowships, or admission to seminars related to teaching, one's discipline, scholarship, and/or creative activities.
- e Successful performances in significant recitals or productions in which such performances are invited or selected after competitive review.
- f Membership on editorial boards, juries judging art works, or juries auditioning performing artists.
- g Development of scholarly applications of technology (e.g., laboratory devices, computer software packages or programs, videotapes).
- h Consultation that involves scholarly application of professional expertise.
- i Participation in on-campus and off-campus workshops, conferences or seminars designed to impart knowledge or skills that enhance teaching, research or service.
- j Scholarship related to one’s teaching that focuses on student learning and that is well grounded in the sources and resources appropriate to the field.

Information Item:

The Senate Ad-hoc Rules Committee is currently in the process of drafting recommendations for the consideration of the Faculty Senate and approval by the President of the University of West Georgia. These recommendations may include the following:

- To establish a University Ombudsperson
- To Establish a Salary and Budget Committee
- To establish a faculty member as Executive Secretary to presides over Senate
- To expand Senate to represent the broader and growing membership of faculty in the campus community
- To establish Co-chambers for Staff and Students
- To establish an elected Senate Executive to replace or merge with PAC
- To establish a permanent Rules Committee
- To enhance Faculty roles in governance as direct contributors in decision-making at all levels
- To enhance direct lines of communication between faculty and all levels of administration
- To establish an online information clearing house for all senate committee reports, information and minutes

Further to this process the Ad-hoc Rules Committee plans to hold open ‘Town Hall’ meetings to facilitate as wide a range of comments and inputs as possible. These will be announced in due course.

Department of Anthropology

Modify Program: Update Learning Outcomes

Replace current Learning Outcomes:

Students completing the B.A. degree with a major in Anthropology should be able:

- 1. to utilize the scientific method to reinforce learning and develop critical thinking skills to foster academic independence;*
- 2. to develop a solid base of anthropological knowledge;*
- 3. to understand the diversity of cultural practices through time and space;*
- 4. to develop oral and written communication skills; and*
- 5. to apply anthropological knowledge through research in anthropology*

with

Students completing the B.A. degree with a major in Anthropology should be able:

1. apply critical thinking skills through the use of anthropological methods,
2. demonstrate a broad base of anthropological knowledge,
3. recognize the diversity of cultural practices through time and space,
4. demonstrate oral and written communication skills, and
5. apply anthropological knowledge through research in Anthropology.

Rationale: In response to a program evaluation, we have been asked to develop learning outcomes that use preferred verbs.

1. Replace requirement for:

ANTH 3105 Archaeology

with

Archaeology - Choose 1:

ANTH 3105 Archaeology

ANTH 3156 Archaeology of Political Organization

ANTH 3184 Mesoamerican Archaeology

ANTH 4115 North American Archaeology

ANTH 4117 Archaeology of Georgia

Physical Anthropology – Choose 1:

ANTH 3106 Physical Anthropology

ANTH 4125 Forensic Anthropology

ANTH 4150 Human Evolution

ANTH 4165 Primatology

3. Change Socio-Cultural Anthropology to Cultural Anthropology

4. Add to acceptable list of courses for Cultural Anthropology:

ANTH 3180 Environmental Anthropology

ANTH 4134 Animals and Culture

Rationale: We are proposing this change to strengthen RPG. By allowing students a broader range of courses, they do not have to wait two years for a required course to be offered.

Rationale for addition of ANTH 4125 Forensic Anthropology

This course is designed for anthropology majors, minors, and other students interested in learning about forensic anthropology. It is not a required course for our majors, but will be one of several physical anthropology courses they can take to fulfill the physical anthropology requirement of our curriculum. They can also take it as an upper-level elective. This course will broaden the department's physical anthropology course offerings. It will also draw students majoring in Criminology, as well as others with a general interest.

Tuesday, Thursday 3:30-4:45

Professor: Dr. Julie Wieczkowski

Office: Pafford 332

Office phone: 678-839-6458

Office hours: Tuesday 9-11 am, Wednesday 12-4 pm, Thursday 8:30-9:30 am, and by appointment

E-mail: juliewhiz@yahoo.com

Learning outcomes:

Through successful completion of this course, the student will:

- ❖ demonstrate a knowledge of the human skeleton and methods used to identify human remains within a legal context.
- ❖ display an understanding of the responsibilities of a forensic anthropologist.
- ❖ develop a solid understanding of a forensic anthropology topic.

Course textbooks:

There are two required books for this course.

Byers SN. 2004. Introduction to Forensic Anthropology: A Textbook, Second Edition. Boston, MA: Allyn and Bacon. ISBN: 0205435386.

Whitehead PF, Sacco WK, and Hochgraf SB. 2005. A Photographic Atlas for Physical Anthropology. Englewood, CO: Morton Publishing Company. ISBN: 0895825724.

Class policies such as food and drink policy, students with disabilities, and a Culture of Honesty removed

Vocabulary list:

Throughout the course of the semester, you will create a vocabulary list based on lecture and textbook material. You can organize this vocabulary list however you wish (e.g., alphabetical, by topic, by date, etc.), but you must add to it regularly. You will turn in the vocabulary list four times during the course of the semester (see schedule for dates). I will assign 20 points to your list every time you turn it in based on thoroughness. (NB: You will not be able to make up points by adding missed words to the list the next time you turn it in.) These can be hand-written, but must be legible.

Short-answer exams:

There will be four short-answer exams throughout the semester. See the schedule below for dates and topics. Each will be worth 50 points.

Abstracts of primary research articles:

At the beginning of the semester, you will pick a topic relating to forensic anthropology (choice must be accepted by the professor). The choice must be made by Friday, 13 January. You are to find eight articles pertaining to your topic from the primary literature. A typed bibliography is due by Thursday, 19 January. You must then meet with me to discuss the bibliography before you can proceed with the project, so the earlier you turn your bibliography in the better. Each week (according to the schedule below), you will turn in an abstract of one article (similar to the author's abstract, but in your own words). These abstracts must be typed, double-spaced, 12-point font, and use regular margins. I will not accept hand-written abstracts. They are to be 1-2 pages. You must turn in the article's abstract (written by the author/s) with your abstract. Each abstract is worth 20 points. I will assign points based on thoroughness, coherency, logical flow, and grammar/spelling. I will accept late papers for 24 hours after the due-date, but your paper will automatically lose 10 points. If your paper is late, you must hand me your paper; papers slid under my door will not be accepted. If I am not in my office, you must hand your paper to Brenda in Pafford 308.

Revised abstracts with a brief introductory essay:

At the end of the semester (due date Tuesday, 25 April), you will turn in your eight abstracts along with a 2-3 page introductory essay. The purpose of this introductory essay is to tie your eight articles together. In addition, if you did not receive full points on any of the abstracts, you can revise them and turn them in again for a possible full points. (You cannot revise for points missed because you turned the paper in late.) You must turn in the introductory essay, your original abstracts and author's abstracts, and any revised abstracts. The introductory essay is worth 50 points and will be graded based on thoroughness, coherency, logical flow, and grammar/spelling. The essay must be typed, double-spaced, 12-point font, and use regular margins.

Final course grade:

Your final course grade will be calculated from your four vocabulary list scores, your four exam grades, your eight abstract (or revised abstract) grades, and your introductory essay grade.

462-510 points = A

411-461 points = B

360-410 points = C

309-359 points = D

0-308 points = F

ANTH 4184 Senior Seminar
ABBREVIATED SYLLABUS FOR A ONE CREDIT COURSE

Required Text: Omohundro, John. 2001. Careers in Anthropology. London: Mayfield.

Course Objectives: This capstone course for Anthropology majors provides students with a formal opportunity to evaluate their undergraduate education and to define their future career or professional plans.

Learning Outcomes: Students are expected to:

- assess their educational outcomes,
- define their professional goals,
- demonstrate knowledge of what is involved in successful job searches and entry into graduate schools
- demonstrate knowledge of professional ethics of anthropology, whether applied in academia or in non-academic settings.

Weekly Assignments: You are expected to have the assignments completed before class on the day for which they are assigned.

8/20: Introduction: Course Design and Assignments

8/27: What is Anthropology and what can you do with it? Text—Intro, Ch. 1, 2. Type answers to the questions and be prepared to discuss in class.

9/3: Self-Assessment. (5% of your grade) Ch. 4. Exercise 12 due in class. (10%) Introduce Ex. 15.

9/10: “What do Anthropologists Do?” Ch. 3. Due: “Your Profile of an Anthropologist.” (10%)

9/17: Graduate School. Ch. 6. Due: “AAA Guide/Internet Graduate School Search.” (10%)

9/24: Careers. Ch. 7. Due: Exercise 2—choose a track: academic or career. (10%)

10/1: Skills. Ch. 5. Due: “Anthropology Curriculum Assessment.” (10%)

10/8: The Job Search. Ch. 8, 9. Due: Exercise 6 to discuss in class (not to hand in).

10/15: Resume/Curriculum Vitae. Exercise 5 due in class. (the CV itself is NOT due yet). (5%)

10/22: Review CVs. CV due in class. (10%) (reminder: Exercise 15 due in class next week)

10/29: Internet. Exercise 8—find sites in 5 of the categories. Discuss results of Myers-Briggs Type Indicator test. Due: Exercise 15: discuss results. (10%)

11/5: Writing I: Due: “Writing Sample and Evaluation” (10%)

11/12: Writing II: Due: "Job letter" or "Graduate School Statement". Read Ex. 14. (10%)

11/19: Due: "Alumni Interview" (10%)

11/26: Ethics: Read AAA Code of Ethics: <http://www.aaanet.org/committees/ethics/ethcode.htm>
Also, do an internet search to learn more about an ethical issue in anthropology. Present it for discussion as a yes/no question: for example, "should anthropologists do x?". Defend your own answer based on the Code. For ideas, do a general search, or look up the AAA Handbook on Ethics: <http://www.aaanet.org/committees/ethics/toc.htm>

12/3: Ethics cont. Portfolio due.

Assignments:

1. Book excercizes: as indicated in book, unless otherwise specified in syllabus. Be prepared to turn in the results and discuss them in class on the day they are due.
2. "Your Profile of an Anthropologist": Choose an anthropologist who shares your interests. Write a 2-3 page biography, including personal information (i.e. where they grew up, how they got interested in anthropology) as well as intellectual interests. If the person is still living, you may feel free to contact them. Search the web, reference books in the library, etc.
3. "AAA Guide/Internet Graduate School Search": Identify 3-4 graduate programs that match your interests. Identify at least one faculty member you would like to work at each institution with and why. Also make a general statement of why you are interested in that school. Think of things like location, supporting programs (i.e. is there an Asian Studies Center? Do they offer certificates in Gender Studies?), financial support, etc. Identify 1-2 "dream programs" and 1-2 "just in case" programs where you have a good idea you would be happy.
4. "Anthropology Curriculum Assessment": Get a copy of your transcript from Banweb and evaluate each of the courses you took in Anthropology. What did you learn? Did you enjoy it at the time? Do you find it useful in retrospect? How well do you feel it prepared you for whatever your next step is? Write a solid paragraph for each course. You may also include courses you took in other programs that you feel prepared you well.
5. C.V.—include your education, employment with a description of job duties, scholarships and awards—include amount and time period, memberships (i.e. Anthro Club), paper presentations and conferences attended, languages spoken. (we'll go over it in class)
6. "Writing Sample and Evaluation": Include a copy of a term paper you wrote for an anthropology class and write an evaluation of it. Include: 1. the thesis of the paper; 2. evidence; 3. literature you drew on; 4. the paper's strengths; 5. weaknesses; 6. how you would revise it.
7. "Job letter" or "Graduate School Statement": For a job letter, identify a job ad (like in Ex. 14) and write a letter of application using the guidelines in Ex. 14. For a Graduate School Statement, write a statement of interest for a graduate school that you specify. Identify your general interests in anthropology, your specific interest in their program, and any other pieces of information you consider important. (I'll try to get better guidelines for this).
8. "Alumni Interview": Identify an alum and interview her/him. Ask about their career path, how they felt their anthropological training helped them, their future plans, etc. We can devise additional questions in class.

Current Description: "An examination of anthropology as a profession. Issues such as ethical considerations selection of a graduate school, research, and grant sources will be discussed."

Proposed Description: " In this capstone course for Anthropology majors, students will assess their educational outcomes, define their professional goals, demonstrate knowledge of what is involved in successful job searches and entry into graduate schools, and demonstrate knowledge of professional ethics of anthropology, whether applied in academia or in non-academic settings."

The proposed description more accurately reflects the learning outcomes of the course

Programmatic Changes for Secondary Education in English: Rationale

In a recent New York Times editorial, Bob Herbert assesses the current state of public education in America. He refers to his discussion with Harvard education professor Thomas Kane and contends that educational sea change requires “new forms of identifying good teachers and weeding out poor ones [. . .] before any transformation of American schools can occur.” He further states that “studies have clearly shown that the good teachers and the not-so-good ones can usually be identified, if they are carefully observed in their first two or three years on the job.”¹ Such an evaluation process of our nation’s educators seems sensible and fair and could certainly prove valuable for them as they fashion teaching selves. But what of the teacher training before such a test?

Long before “their first two or three years on the job,” teachers-in-training must receive instruction that highlights broad-based educational theories and then emphasizes content-specific coursework. Working in conjunction with the COE, the English department seeks to assume a larger responsibility for its secondary Education (SEED) students’ educational experience in the content-specific courses each must take to fulfill degree requirements.

The program revisions summarized here will transform the English SEED student’s experience in the English classroom. Students will, in accordance with our plan, begin to cultivate a learning community environment in an education-steered ENGL 2300 course. This already-compulsory course introduces them to literary criticism and focuses on writing about literature as well as research in the field. Creating education-specific sections permits instructors to center on endemic issues in the teaching of literature. Later in their course of study, students will take ENGL 3400, a brand-new Pedagogy and Writing course which surveys major foundational philosophies and subsequent practices in the instruction of writing. In this course, students will be introduced to field work, as they must observe in both the University Writing Center and in university writing classrooms. Such courses provide these future instructors with sound pedagogical means to reach educational ends.

Our plan also proposes the Methods for Teaching Secondary English (ENGL 4238) and Teaching Internship (ENGL 4286) courses, which will be taught and administered by English faculty. These two classes will refine skills introduced in ENGL 2300 and 3400 and will require extensive field work. We designed both to equip students for the professional sphere and to enable them to deploy acquired methods as they enter various classroom situations. The Teaching Internship, with its required seminar component, will encourage a practicum environment where student-teachers may assess and discuss their progress as they compile capstone portfolios that reflect synthesis between their work in the field and in the classroom.

These program modifications demonstrate our strong commitment to train teachers in content-specific areas well before the professional tests they will encounter in our educational system.

¹ Bob Herbert, “Our Schools Must Do Better,” New York Times. 2 Oct. 2007.

Programmatic Changes for Secondary Education in English: Proposal

- Current Requirements:

Area F (courses related to the major)

ENGL 2300: Practical Criticism (required)

Area C (upper-level division ENGL courses)

ENGL 4300: Studies in the English Language (required)

ENGL 3400 (Advanced Composition: Creative Non-Fiction) or ENGL 3405

(Professional and Technical Writing)

Area F (upper-level division courses for certification)

SEED 4238: Instructional Strategies for Teaching English

SEED 4286: Teaching Internship

SEED 4289: Teaching Internship Seminar

- Proposed Changes to the Requirements:

Area F (courses related to the major)

ENGL 2300 (ENGL ED-specific section[s])

Area C (upper-level division ENGL courses)

ENGL 4300: Studies in the English Language (required)

ENGL 3400: Pedagogy and Writing (required)

Area F (upper-level division courses for certification)

ENGL 4238: Methods for Teaching Secondary English

ENGL 4286: Teaching Internship with added seminar component

- Rationale:

1. Creating a learning community environment in ENGL 2300 will promote programmatic coherence early on in our students' ENGL ED experience and enable instructors of said sections to target the learning needs of teachers in training.
2. The addition of a required course in Pedagogy and Writing, ENGL 3400, will ensure content-specific transferable understanding of foundational theories, trends, and practices in current writing instruction.
3. Moving SEED 4238 into our department allows for advanced refinement of the skills learned in ENGL 2300 and ENGL 3400 and provides program coherence through recursive study of content-specific material directly related to future English instructors' needs in the classroom environment.
4. Acquiring SEED 4286 enables us to have a significant role in placing teachers-in-training in classroom environments where their content-specific learning will be put to the test effectively.

5. The three-hour SEED 4289 course's needs can be addressed in a practicum component built into ENGL 4286 and reinforced for assessment purposes in an ENGL ED steered ENGL 4384 (Senior Seminar) section as students prepare their final portfolios.

- Further Stipulations:

1. ENGL proposes that the COE retain the three hours previously dedicated to SEED 4289 as they make curricular changes in their vital program (see attachment for their changes).
2. ENGL would like to assume responsibility for the field work portion of SEED 4238 and the observation portion of SEED 4286 and will conduct these activities in accordance with current regulations that maintain accreditation.

ENGL 4238: Methods for Teaching Secondary English
Prototypical Syllabus

Finding the Corners and Turning the Corner: Methods for Teaching Secondary English

“Every truth has four corners: as a teacher I give you one corner, and it is for you to find the other three.”
--Confucius

Course Objectives:

- Students will increase their ability to formulate and state goals for the teaching of English in accordance with standards set down in their respective professional environments.
- Students will learn to promote rigorously analytical and critical thinking in the classroom environment within frameworks that may define their respective professional environments.
- Students will gain knowledge of specific pedagogical tools used in the teaching of English.
- Students will practice creating curriculum units and micro-lessons within those units.
- Students will write reflectively about their readings, class discussion, and field experiences.
- Students will conduct concerted, scholarly research in the field and apply their findings to a primary text of their choosing as they, in a major capstone assignment, critically read it, argue for its teaching in a particular classroom environment, and generate a plan of action for its instruction.
- Students will study various assessment models and learn to apply them to student writing.
- Students will regularly observe and practice in the field.
- Students will move towards fashioning teaching selves ready to enact specific ethics of care in the English classroom.

Course Description:

This course, taught by English Department faculty, is compulsory for English Education students. It unites theory and practice to produce sound pedagogical strategies for the teaching of English (Language Arts). In it, teachers-in-training will learn refined instructional strategies and deepen their understanding of the foundations from which such approaches develop. As a result, students will begin to fashion teaching selves through recursive discussion, concentrated research, analytical writing, repeated field observation, and practical implementation.

Required Texts:

- Why we Teach:
The English Teacher's Companion, Third Edition: A Complete Guide to Classroom, Curriculum, and the Profession. Jim Burke. 2007.
- Speak. Laurie Halse-Anderson. 2001.

TEACHER EDUCATION HANDBOOK - UWO COLLEGE OF EDUCATION

Beyond Standards: Excellence in the High School English Classroom. Carol Jago. 2001.

- How we Teach (an electronic course pack will be developed using select chapters/excerpts from the following texts):

Critical Encounters in High School English: Teaching Literary Theory to Adolescents. Deborah Appleman. 2000.

Voice Lessons: Classroom Activities to Teach Diction, Detail, Imagery, Syntax, and Tone. Nancy Dean. 2000.

Papers, Papers, Papers: An English Teacher's Survival Guide. Carol Jago. 2005.

Major Assignments:

Reading and Field Journal:

Each student will write two to three pages per week about his/her experiences in the field and the assigned readings. The writing is reflective in nature.

Field Work:

Students will be sent into the field to observe and practice teaching twice per week. In class, students will engage in "Outfield/Infield" discussions that focus on their ongoing field experiences.

Unit Plan:

Students will create a specific and detailed unit plan for a class primary text. They will also create micro-lessons within this unit plan to evidence their understanding of emphasizing specific skill sets.

Final Project:

The tripartite Final Project requires students to choose a primary text and perform a critical reading of it in Part One. In Part Two, students will offer up a clear argument for teaching the text that outlines its pedagogical import in a particular classroom setting. Thirdly, teachers-in-training will create a practical lesson plan that incorporates the critical reading and pedagogical position. Essentially, then, the ten to twelve page project requires that students theorize about the text, argue for its implementation in a specific learning environment, and put forth a detailed plan of action. A proposal (text choice, rationale, and working bibliography) for the Final Project is due around mid-semester.

Final Portfolio:

Students will compile their work in this and other pertinent classes into a final portfolio to be turned in at the end of the semester. They will be asked to write a brief introduction to that portfolio that evidences synthesis between class study and field observation. Such an assignment works as both a self and programmatic assessment tool.

Weekly Syllabus:

Weeks One through Three

- ✓ Classwork:

ENGL 4286: Teaching Internship

Prerequisites: Admission to Teacher Education Program; application for field experience required prior to enrollment.

Course Description:

The course involves teaching one semester in the public schools at the secondary level in English under the supervision of an experienced, qualified English teacher. Seminars in English secondary education are scheduled as an integral part of the student teaching experience and will provide students with numerous and varied opportunities to plan, deliver, evaluate, and revise secondary English educational strategies. Such a learning environment, based on developing best practices and sound pedagogical modeling in the field, serve as part of an ongoing and comprehensive portfolio assessment process.

Course Objectives/Learning Outcomes:

- Students will deploy pedagogical practices under the tutelage of a professional in the field.
- Students will become familiar with and discuss negotiation within existing frameworks in particular professional environments.
- Students' field experiences will build toward major synthesis between their college coursework and internship experience.
- Students will, in weekly practica, discuss issues in the field with classmates and guiding professor and will write reflectively and analytically about their ongoing internships.
- Students will share "best practice" scenarios from their internship experiences and engage in case study work to find solutions for encountered issues.
- Students will practice self and peer assessment during weekly seminars.
- Students will compile work from weekly seminars and other courses in portfolios that work as both self and programmatic assessment tools.
- Students will, after having completed most mandatory coursework, begin fashioning teaching selves ready to enter the public school system upon graduation.

Africana Studies Minor Program Modifications Rationale:

The following modifications reflect the need to revitalize and make more accessible this program that speaks so directly to the plan/mission/goals/vision of the institution and the University System of Georgia. Global awareness is a part of both the University's mission statement and the University System of Georgia's values. - friendly amendment to include a statement on how program benefits students.

The current catalog requirements are attached.

1. Replace XIDS 3300 with ENGL/HIST 3350

The gateway course for the Africana Studies minor is currently an XIDS course.

Changing the required course for the minor to HIST/ENGL3350 will give it a broader student pool from which to recruit. Since the co-coordinators of the minor are in the English and History departments, it will also make it easier for those departments to schedule the course on a regular basis. - friendly amendment to change phrase "make it easier" to "provide greater access."

2. Reduce required number of hours from 18 to 15

This makes the Africana Studies minor similar in course hour requirements to other interdisciplinary minors such as American Studies.

3. Eliminate the Area IV, Caribbean Requirement.

This change reflects the difficulty that students encounter in finding a course offered in this area.

4. Change Area III (African) to African, Caribbean and Other Diaspora

See above. This change allows students to take courses on the Caribbean and African Diaspora, as they become available.

5. Add specification that Areas II and III be one social science and one humanities course.

The Coordinator of the Africana Studies minor will be able to make appropriate course substitutions when necessary to enable students to complete the minor in a timely fashion.

Current Minor:

Africana Studies—18 Hours

Area I (3)	Area II—African-American (6)	Area III—African (6)	Area IV—Caribbean and Other Diaspora (3)
XIDS 3300	1 appropriate Humanities course and 1 Social Science course.	1 appropriate Humanities course and 1 Social Science course.	1 appropriate course selected by student.

Proposed Minor:

Minor in Africana Studies—15 Hours

Area I (3)	Area II—African-American (6)	Area III—African, Caribbean, and other Diaspora (6)
ENGL/HIST 3350	1 appropriate Humanities course and 1 Social Science course.	1 appropriate Humanities course and 1 Social Science course.

B. Responses to Public Events: You are also required to attend one event related to the themes of the class, and to write a critical response paper on the event. This paper will be a two-page double-spaced essay examining the defining ideas for the event. What did the event try to communicate and why? How do these ideas relate to other major themes and projects for Africana Studies? What questions did the event raise for you and what are some important answers to take from the event? Use these questions to begin your reflection and also work to create your own questions. This paper will be counted along with your weekly critical response papers.

Thus you are required to write a total of eleven critical response papers. In their totality these essays constitute 30% of your final grade.

II. Class discussion will be based, in part, upon the response essays posted on WebCT. Class discussion constitutes 10% of your final grade.

III. Research Paper. You are required to complete a twelve page research essay complete with a bibliography. Specific guidelines for the bibliography will be distributed after a intensive library session. The final paper is due, in accordance with the final exam schedule. Drawing upon the scholarship and insights of two disciplines (e.g., History and English, Political Science and Anthropology), you will produce a research essay based upon an original topic in consultation with the faculty members in the course. The objectives of this requirement are fourfold: a) to sharpen your research and writing skills; b) to expand your knowledge of major texts and themes in Africana Studies; c) to introduce you to the nature of interdisciplinary research, the research paradigm in Africana Studies; d) to expand your knowledge of research data bases in Africana Studies. The grade for your research essay constitutes 60% of your final grade.

Attendance Policy: Participation is an integral part of the learning process. You should come to class prepared to discuss that day's assigned reading. You are allowed four absences. Each subsequent absence will result in a 1% reduction in your final course grade.

Sample Syllabus for Introduction to Africana Studies ENGL/HIST 3350

Course Description:

This course introduces the study of African people both on the continent of Africa and in the Caribbean, Brazil, Spanish America, and North America. It surveys some of the major areas of development in historical studies, literary studies, social sciences, and the arts. Cutting across these specific disciplines are topics of enduring interest in the field, including the black student movement that birthed Black Studies as an academic program. Other topics fall within the following three categories: (1) Africa and the Diaspora: the history of ancient African civilizations and the consequences of the transatlantic slave trade; (2) expressive arts and culture: the arts of the Black Atlantic world including oral, musical, and literary creativity; (3) identities, ideologies, and institutions: the black freedom struggle and gender, sexuality and class issues within Black institutions. Representing the organization of the major itself, ENGL/HIST 3350 introduces students to such concepts and topics as the Diaspora, the African slave trade, abolitionism, slavery and the literary imagination, the New Negro Movement, and representations and constructions of race and class.

Learning Outcomes:

1. Students completing this course will be able to describe the historical and political trends that led to the establishment of Black Studies departments and the development of Africana Studies as a field of scholarly inquiry.
2. Students will demonstrate an understanding of the major themes in Africana Studies by producing a research paper that draws upon the scholarship of at least two disciplines.
3. Students will be able to describe, both orally and in written form, the significance of the trans-Atlantic slave trade in the history and culture of Africans in the Americas.
5. Students will demonstrate their command of academic English and of the tenets of sound composition by means of thesis-driven analytical prose.

Suggested Texts:

Abdul Alkalimat, Paradigms in Black Studies

Hayes, Floyd, A Turbulent Voyage: Readings in African-American Studies

Karenga, Maulana, Introduction to Black Studies

Other readings will be provided in electronic form.

Course Requirements and Grading:

I. Response Essays:

A. Responses to Class Readings and Lectures: No more than three pages, double-spaced. You will write and post these response essays on WebCT. The objectives of this requirement are threefold: a) to facilitate an ongoing collective discussion of the weekly readings; b) to provide a more meaningful framework for class discussion on the second day of each instructional component; c) to underscore the dynamic relationship between writing, reading and discussion.

Proposed New Course Syllabus

GRMN 4260: Austrian Literature and Culture

Gary Schmidt, Assistant Professor of German

Rationale:

This course is an additional 4000-level elective for German majors and minors. It further broadens the range of courses available for students to take and utilizes an area of specialization in my research. Although Austria is a small country today, its influence on world culture has been enormous. Until 1918, Vienna was the capital of the multinational Austro-Hungarian Empire under the rule of the Hapsburg Dynasty; famous composers, writers, directors, philosophers, and scientists such as Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart, Ludwig van Beethoven, Franz Schubert, Gustav Mahler, Johann Strauss, Arnold Schönberg, Sigmund Freud, Gustav Klimt, Fritz Lang, Ludwig Wittgenstein, Karl Popper, Karl Kraus and Arthur Schnitzler all lived and worked in Vienna for at least part of their lives. On the dark side, Vienna was also the birthplace of modern Anti-Semitism and Austria the birthplace of Hitler. "Austrian Literature and Culture" is a content-based language and culture course, which means that students improve their ability to speak, read, write, and understand German as they learn, discuss, and analyze important aspects of Austrian history and culture from the late eighteenth century to the present. In this course students will improve their ability to speak and write about such topics as music, art, politics, ideology, literature, gender roles and sexuality. The class is conducted entirely in German.

Course Objectives (content and language):

- Students recognize and discuss (in German!) the significance of important figures and movements of Austrian history and culture.
- Students demonstrate a basic understanding of major developments in Austrian history since the late eighteenth century.
- Students improve their ability to read German by closely analyzing challenging literary texts.
- Students expand their German vocabulary and actively use abstract and complex language in discussing and writing about the course topics.
- Students improve their ability to write German.
- Students improve speaking skills by giving oral presentations and actively participating in class discussion.

Texts may be selected from the following:

- Leo Perutz. Zwischen neun und neun.
- Arthur Schnitzler. Traumnovelle (Dream Story).
- Marlen Haushofer. Wir töten Stella.
- Joseph Roth. „Die Büste des Kaisers.“
- Thomas Bernhard. Heldenplatz.
- Ingeborg Bachman. Das dreißigste Jahr.

PROGRAM MODIFICATION

OF

BS DEGREE WITH MAJOR IN GEOGRAPHY

RATIONALE

At present several problems exist with the requirements of the degree program. They violate the University System of Georgia's recommendations for Area F, they are ambiguous in many places, and they are out of date in terms of the quantity and quality of current and future faculty resources and intellectual and methodological developments in the discipline. The Department of Geosciences proposes to revise the BS degree program in Geography to yield the following degree requirements [NEXT PAGE].

A specific note: currently there are at least four concentrations (or tracks) that BS students can pursue. With these changes, all existing tracks will cease to exist and will be replaced by the two outlined below.

B.S. DEGREE WITH A MAJOR IN GEOGRAPHY

LEARNING OUTCOMES

The list below represents the major learning objectives of the B.S. Degree in Geography. Upon graduating from the Department of Geosciences, every student with a bachelor's degree in Geography should be able to do the following:

- Recognize historical and contemporary perspectives of the discipline
- Demonstrate an understanding of concepts and vocabulary basic to geography
- Perform qualitative and quantitative analyses of geographic phenomena
- Demonstrate a fundamental awareness of geographic dimensions to human and physical processes and conditions
- Explain processes of political, economic, and cultural difference within and between human societies
- Demonstrate fundamentals of cartography and geographic information systems
- Demonstrate competence in the manipulation and analysis of spatial data
- Demonstrate understanding of physical processes at the earth's surface
- Characterize global human and physical environments
- Demonstrate the fundamentals of remote sensing and image processing

Rationale for modification of GEOL 4063

The department of Geosciences wishes to add an exit exam requirement to the B.S. Degree with major in Geology. We wish to require potential graduates to complete the Fundamentals of Geology exam administered by the National Association of State Boards of Geology (ASBOG).

We desire this new requirement for two reasons. First, we wish to establish a systematic, external assessment of our graduates and our program. The ASBOG exam is the most comprehensive, relevant and widely accepted exam for the professional practice of geology and thus is the obvious choice for this purpose. The exam covers all major subject areas within the field of geology and score reporting from ASBOG details performance within each subject area. Exam results have the potential not only to indicate overall graduate preparedness but to indicate specific areas of strength and weakness within our program.

Second, we wish to optimally prepare our geology graduates for their future careers. Twenty eight states (including Georgia) require the ASBOG exam for professional geologist licensure. Therefore, a large proportion of our geology graduates will eventually be required to take the exam to become practicing geologists. Furthermore, geology graduates who have already passed the exam will be at an advantage when seeking employment.

ASBOG has a mechanism in place for administering the exam as an undergraduate geology degree exit exam. Exam scheduling is designed to fit with the academic calendar and special application procedures allow prospective graduates to sit for the exam. Based on a 2003 survey by the Geological Society of America of 500 geoscience departments 12% were already using the ASBOG exam as an exit exam. UWG Geosciences Department will administer the exam-as-degree-requirement through existing course GEOL 4063, Plate Tectonics, which will be modified to require the ASBOG exam. Final grades in GEOL 4063 will be partly based on the student's ASBOG exam score. The course will also include review/practice sessions for exam preparation; additional review and practice sessions will be available independent of the class as needed.

Existing resources are sufficient to support this change.

Rationale for adding HIST 3350

The gateway course for the Africana Studies minor is currently an XIDS course. Changing the required course for the minor to HIST/ENGL3350 will give it a broader student pool from which to recruit. Since the co-coordinators of the minor are in the English and History departments, it will also make it easier for those departments to schedule the course on a regular basis.

Sample Syllabus for Introduction to Africana Studies ENGL/HIST 3350

Course Description:

This course introduces the study of African people both on the continent of Africa and in the Caribbean, Brazil, Spanish America, and North America. It surveys some of the major areas of development in historical studies, literary studies, social sciences, and the arts. Cutting across these specific disciplines are topics of enduring interest in the field, including the black student movement that birthed Black Studies as an academic program. Other topics fall within the following three categories: (1) Africa and the Diaspora: the history of ancient African civilizations and the consequences of the transatlantic slave trade; (2) expressive arts and culture: the arts of the Black Atlantic world including oral, musical, and literary creativity; (3) identities, ideologies, and institutions: the black freedom struggle and gender, sexuality and class issues within Black institutions. Representing the organization of the major itself, ENGL/HIST 3350 introduces students to such concepts and topics as the Diaspora, the African slave trade, abolitionism, slavery and the literary imagination, the New Negro Movement, and representations and constructions of race and class.

Learning Outcomes:

1. Students completing this course will be able to describe the historical and political trends that led to the establishment of Black Studies departments and the development of Africana Studies as a field of scholarly inquiry.
2. Students will demonstrate an understanding of the major themes in Africana Studies by producing a research paper that draws upon the scholarship of at least two disciplines.
3. Students will be able to describe, both orally and in written form, the significance of the trans-Atlantic slave trade in the history and culture of Africans in the Americas.
5. Students will demonstrate their command of academic English and of the tenets of sound composition by means of thesis-driven analytical prose.

Suggested Texts:

Abdul Alkalimat, Paradigms in Black Studies

Hayes, Floyd, A Turbulent Voyage: Readings in African-American Studies

Karenga, Maulana, Introduction to Black Studies

Other readings will be provided in electronic form.

Course Requirements and Grading:

I. Response Essays:

A. Responses to Class Readings and Lectures: No more than three pages, double-spaced. You will write and post these response essays on WebCT. The objectives of this requirement are threefold: a) to facilitate an ongoing collective discussion of the weekly readings; b) to provide a more meaningful framework for class discussion on the second day of each instructional component; c) to underscore the dynamic relationship between writing, reading and discussion.

B. Responses to Public Events: You are also required to attend one event related to the themes of the class, and to write a critical response paper on the event. This paper will be a two-page double-spaced essay examining the defining ideas for the event. What did the event try to communicate and why? How do these ideas relate to other major themes and projects for Africana Studies? What questions did the event raise for you and what are some important answers to take from the event? Use these questions to begin your reflection and also work to create your own questions. This paper will be counted along with your weekly critical response papers.

Thus you are required to write a total of eleven critical response papers. In their totality these essays constitute 30% of your final grade.

II. Class discussion will be based, in part, upon the response essays posted on WebCT. Class discussion constitutes 10% of your final grade.

III. Research Paper. You are required to complete a twelve page research essay complete with a bibliography. Specific guidelines for the bibliography will be distributed after a intensive library session. The final paper is due, in accordance with the final exam schedule. Drawing upon the scholarship and insights of two disciplines (e.g., History and English, Political Science and Anthropology), you will produce a research essay based upon an original topic in consultation with the faculty members in the course. The objectives of this requirement are fourfold: a) to sharpen your research and writing skills; b) to expand your knowledge of major texts and themes in Africana Studies; c) to introduce you to the nature of interdisciplinary research, the research paradigm in Africana Studies; d) to expand your knowledge of research data bases in Africana Studies. The grade for your research essay constitutes 60% of your final grade.

Attendance Policy: Participation is an integral part of the learning process. You should come to class prepared to discuss that day's assigned reading. You are allowed four absences. Each subsequent absence will result in a 1% reduction in your final course grade.

Rationale

The proposal to eliminate Math 1112 and to change the prerequisite for Math 1113 will create a three-tier system for Freshman level classes in the math department. This three-tier system will allow the math department to better prepare students for their future math classes than the current system does where all students are essentially covering the same topics in Math 1111/1112 and Math 1113. Hopefully, these changes to better serve each student's needs will increase retention and progression.

The current Math 1001 class will be intended for students in non-science majors in the College of Arts and Sciences. This class is a more appropriate terminal class in mathematics for such students and can also serve as a prerequisite for Math 2063 (Elementary Statistics) which is an appropriate Area D course for such students.

Math 1111 will be intended for students in the College of Business, the College of Education and Nursing majors. The topics covered in the class will be essentially the same as the current Math 1111 although more applications of interest to these majors will be emphasized. This course will be a prerequisite for Math 1413 (Survey of Calculus – business majors) and Math 2063 (Elementary Statistics – nursing majors). In addition, this course can serve as a prerequisite for science majors who do not have adequate preparation for the new Math 1113 course.

Math 1113 will be intended for science majors in the College of Arts and Sciences. The topics covered in this class (see attachment) will prepare students for Calculus, other higher level mathematics and science classes. Eliminating the overlap in the current system between Math 1111/1112 and Math 1113 will allow the math department to give these science majors a more rigorous coverage of Precalculus which should lead to these students having more success in other math and science classes. Changing the prerequisite for this class to “Math 1111 or four years of high school mathematics” will allow students who are well prepared to start in this class as freshman while also allowing students who need some review to take both Math 1111 and 1113.

The recommended courses for incoming freshman would be:

College of Business students	Math 1111
College of Education students	Math 1111
College of Arts and Sciences non – science majors	Math 1001
College of Arts and Sciences science majors	will be placed based on SAT

MATH score: (or placement test)

Less than 550	Math 1111
551-700	Math 1113
700-800	Math 1634

Rationale for B.S.Ed. Program Changes in Speech-Language Pathology

October 11, 2007

All courses in the Speech-Language Pathology (SLPA) program were modified, added, or deleted in response to the American Speech-Language Hearing Association (ASHA) accreditation requirements. The proposed changes in the B.S.Ed. Program in Speech-Language Pathology align the ASHA-certified program with new practices and reduce the number of hours for graduation from 126 to 123.

The proposed changes allow program personnel to better align course credits, titles, and standards links with needs of students, especially for electives and clinical practicum experiences.

Course Changes for the B.S.Ed. Program in Speech-Language Pathology

Rationale for Course Change

SLPA 4722

October 11, 2007

All courses in the Speech-Language Pathology (SLPA) program were modified, added, or deleted in response to the American Speech-Language Hearing Association (ASHA) accreditation requirements. All courses contain Learning Outcomes that are linked to ASHA's Knowledge and Skills (KASAs). In order to align with the newly approved ASHA program, this course is being changed in the following manner:

- The original course included two major areas in speech-language pathology; these areas will be separated into two courses.
- The course title will be changed to reflect the above.
- The course description will be changed to reflect a focus on the one area, multicultural perspectives

Old Description (2006-07 Catalog):

Prerequisites: Admission to Teacher Education; SLPA 3701

This course will discuss issues involved in counseling clients with speech-language pathology-related disorders and their caregivers. It will also provide an overview of the cultural, phonologic, and linguistic aspects which affect service delivery when working with clients from diverse backgrounds.

New Description (Proposed):

Prerequisites: Admission to Teacher Education; SLPA 3701

This course provides an overview of the role that cultural variables play on verbal and nonverbal communication. Students will develop a detailed understanding of their own culture and the characteristics of the four major cultural groups in the United States. Cultural, phonologic, and linguistic features which affect service delivery when working with clients from diverse backgrounds will be emphasized.

COURSE DESCRIPTION

Prerequisites: Admission to Teacher Education; SLPA 3701

This course provides an overview of the role that cultural variables play on verbal and nonverbal communication. Students will develop a detailed understanding of their own culture and the characteristics of the four major cultural groups in the United States. Cultural, phonologic, and linguistic features that affect service delivery when working with clients from diverse backgrounds will be emphasized.

CONCEPTUAL FRAMEWORK

The conceptual framework of the College of Education at UWG forms the basis on which programs, courses, experiences, and outcomes are created. By incorporating the theme "Developing Educators for School Improvement," the College assumes the responsibility for preparing educators who can positively influence school improvement through altering classrooms, schools, and school systems (transformational systemic change). Ten descriptors (decision makers, leaders, lifelong learners, adaptive, collaborative, culturally sensitive, empathetic, knowledgeable, proactive, and reflective) are integral components of the conceptual framework and provide the basis for developing educators who are prepared to improve schools through strategic change. National principles (INTASC), propositions (NBPTS), and standards (Learned Societies) also are incorporated as criteria against which candidates are measured.

The mission of the College of Education is to develop educators who are prepared to function effectively in diverse educational settings with competencies that are instrumental to planning, implementing, assessing, and re-evaluating existing or proposed practices. This course's objectives are related directly to the conceptual framework and appropriate descriptors, principles, or propositions, and Learned Society standards are identified for each objective. Class activities and assessments that align with course objectives, course content, and the conceptual framework are identified in a separate section of the course syllabus.

LEARNING OUTCOMES

Link to American Speech, Language, and Hearing Association (ASHA) Knowledge and Skills Acquisition (KASA)

The ASHA KASA document details the Standards for the Certificate of Clinical Competence (SCCC). It is utilized to demonstrate compliance with accreditation standards related to preparing students to meet ASHA certification requirements. It covers nine main knowledge areas (articulation, fluency, voice and resonance, receptive/expressive language, hearing, swallowing, cognitive aspects, social aspects, and communication modalities) across five clinical parameters (etiology, characteristics, prevention, assessment, and intervention). Due to the importance of the KASA standards in tracking and documenting the student's achievement related to these knowledge areas and clinical parameters, they are directly related to the Learning Outcomes. Accordingly, the relevant Standard(s) are noted under each Learning Outcome. The relevant Conceptual Framework areas and INTASC Principles are also noted and discussed in more detail below:

Students will:

1. identify cultural and linguistic variables which may impact SLP services to members of specific multicultural groups (Battle, 1993, 2000, 2002; Campbell, 1994, 1996; Cheng, 2005a, 2005b; Fowler, Seekins, Dwyer, Duffy, Brod, & Locust, 2000; Gannoti, Handwerker, Groce, & Cruz, 2001; Hernandez, Keys, & Balcazar, 2000; Kathard, 2002; Lue, & Green, 2000)
(ASHA KASA Standards III-C, III-D; Empathetic, Culturally Sensitive, Knowledgeable; Leaders; INTASC* 2, 3, 5);
2. differentiate between communication differences and communication disorders in multicultural populations (Battle, 2000, 2002; Bebout & Arthur, 1992; Campbell, 1992)
(ASHA KASA Standards III-C, III-D; Culturally Sensitive, Decision Makers; Leaders; INTASC 2, 3, 5);
3. select appropriate assessment and treatment materials based on a client's background

(Battle, 2000, 2002; Campbell, 1996; Cheng, 2005a, 2005b; Cho, Singer, & Brenner, 2000) (ASHA KASA Standards III-C, III-D; Culturally Sensitive; Adaptive, Decision Makers, Leaders; INTASC 2, 3, 5, 8);

4. acquire strategies to communicate with people from a variety of cultural, ethnic, and racial backgrounds (ASHA, 1991; Battle, 2000, 2002; Campbell, 1996; Cheng, 2005a, 2005b; Cho et al., 2000; Fowler et al., 2000; Gannoti et al., 2001; Kathard, 2002; McCarthy, 2004; Park & Turnbull, 2001; Rosa-Lugo & Fradd, 2000) (ASHA KASA Standards III-C, III-D, IV-D; Adaptive, Culturally Sensitive, Knowledgeable; INTASC 2, 3, 5);
5. acquire information about the difficulties faced in learning English as a second language (ASHA, 1985, 1989, 1991; Battle, 2000, 2002; Campbell, Brennan, & Steckol, 1992; Cheng, 2005a; Gannoti et al., 2001; Kathard, 2002; Lue & Green, 2000) (ASHA KASA Standards III-C, III-D, IV-D; Culturally Sensitive, Knowledgeable, Empathetic; INTASC 2, 3, 5); and
6. discuss and apply skills in analysis of phonological and linguistic differences between Standard English speakers and culturally and linguistically diverse populations (ASHA, 1985, 1989; Battle, 2000, 2002; Campbell, 1996; Campbell et al., 1992; Cheng, 2005a, 2005b; Fowler et al., 2000) (ASHA KASA Standards III-C, III-D, IV-D; Culturally Sensitive, Knowledgeable; INTASC 2, 3, 5, 7).

ACTIVITIES AND ASSESSMENTS, EVALUATION PROCEDURES, AND GRADING POLICY

Link to Conceptual Framework

The primary focus of this introductory course is on the student becoming familiar with multicultural and counseling issues in the area of speech language pathology. The students become familiar with communication differences vs. disorder and the speech language pathologist's role in the identification process. At the completion of the course the student will have demonstrated achievement in the conceptual framework descriptors as follows: Decision Makers; reflected in student preparation for class participation, preparation for class presentation and selection of appropriate materials for use (Assignments 1, 5, 6), Leaders; reflected during class discussions, class presentations, and knowledge base reflected in various test questions (Assignments 1, 2, 5, 6), Adaptive; reflected in student participation in selection of appropriate materials as related to varying cultural and social/emotional issues in clients (Assignments 1, 2, 6), Culturally Sensitive; reflected during assignments related to multicultural aspects related to research assignment and assessment and treatment factors in multicultural populations (Assignments 1-6), Empathetic; demonstrated during all activities and class discussions (Assignments 1, 2, 3, 5, 6), Knowledgeable reflected in all class assignments and activities

(Assignments 1-6).

Activities and Assessments:

1. Online/independent assignment: Each student will complete an online/independent assignment pertaining to multicultural service delivery. The final product will be a written paper. (80 points)
(Learning Outcomes 1, 2, 3, 5, 6; written paper, rubric)
2. Each student will complete in-class assignments in the area of assessment and treatment of multicultural populations. (20 points)
(Learning Outcomes 2, 3, 6; rubric)
3. Movie review: Cultural differences and conflicts form the basis of many movies. Each student will view one of the following movies and write a 3-5 page paper explaining how cultural differences and/or conflicts formed the basis for the plot. Your paper should be typed and double-spaced. The logic and organization as well as quality of writing (grammar and spelling) will be evaluated. A rubric will be provided. (50 points)
Baby Boom, Driving Miss Daisy, Mr. Baseball, My Big Fat Greek Wedding, My Cousin Vinny, Philadelphia, Stand and Deliver, The Joy Luck Club
(Learning Outcomes 1, 4; written paper, rubric)
4. Paper: Culture and You: All of us are shaped by the culture in which we were raised. Identify and discuss the cultural forces that have been powerful in your life. Your paper should be typed and double-spaced. The logic and organization as well as quality of writing (grammar and spelling) will be evaluated. A rubric will be provided. (50 points)
(Learning Outcomes 1, 2; written paper, rubric)
5. Interview: In groups, students will be required to interview a nonnative speaker of English or a speaker of a dialect of English. Students must provide their own interviewee. Interviews will take place outside of class on students' own time. The project must include the following:
 - A. Self-developed questionnaire for use during interview
The purpose is to lead the interviewee to discuss his/her culture and any difficulties he/she has had to face as a result of merging cultures/living in a new culture. The questionnaire must explore communication and language, vocational differences and experiences, social difficulties and experiences, education for themselves and/or their children, and healthcare.
 - B. Independent research about the native culture of the subject
Utilize the library's resources and above websites. Include information about cultural standards, and language differences.

- C. Written paper
Include a copy of the questionnaire, a discussion of the information that was provided by the interviewee, and the independent research about the native culture.
- D. Presentation of project to class
Discuss your questionnaire, overall summary of interview, and summary of independent research. (100 points)
(Learning Outcomes 5, 6; written paper, presentation)
6. Examination: Each student will complete two examinations, each worth 50 points, regarding SLP services to multicultural populations. (100 points)
(Learning Outcomes 1, 2; exam)

Evaluation Procedures:

Students will be evaluated on a total point system. Extra credit is not an option.

Opportunities for extra credit will not be provided for this class. Work completed for another class is not acceptable for this class, although students may choose to build on something done for another class.

CLASS POLICIES

Please note:

As a reflection of university policy, this class is in compliance with all applicable federal, state, and local laws, including but not limited to, the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990, the Civil Rights act of 1964, the Equal Pay Act, the Age Discrimination in Employment Act, the Age Discrimination Act of 1975, Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 (to the Higher Education Act of 1965), the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, the Vietnam-Era Veterans Readjustment Assistance Act of 1974, and all amendments to the foregoing.

As advocates of both the letter and intent of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act, we will make every accommodation possible to support students with disabilities which may negatively impact academic performance. Students with disabilities should make arrangements for the appropriate adaptation or accommodation at the beginning of the semester.

1. Punctuality is one of the hallmarks of a professional. It demonstrates respect for the instructor and your colleagues and promotes classroom instruction. Therefore, two occurrences of tardiness equal one unexcused absence and two unexcused absences will result in a one letter grade reduction. If, for any reason you will be forced to be tardy or absent, you must obtain Instructor approval.
2. Students must exhibit professional conduct and demeanor consistent with ASHA, Georgia Professional Standards Commission, and University guidelines. Failure to do so may result in disciplinary actions and/or a lowering of the grade.
3. Assignments will not be accepted unless pages are held together with a staple or paper clip.

Rationale for Course Change

SLPA 4724

October 11, 2007

All courses in the Speech-Language Pathology (SLPA) program were modified, added, or deleted in response to requirements of the American Speech-Language Hearing Association's (ASHA) accreditation requirements. For purposes of the ASHA application process, all courses contain Learning Outcomes that are linked to ASHA's Knowledge and Skills (KASAs). In order to align with the newly approved ASHA program, this course is being changed in the following manner:

- The original course included two major areas in speech-language pathology; these areas will be separated into two courses.
- The course title reflects the above change.
- The proposed course reflects a focus on counseling issues.

New Description (Proposed):

Prerequisites: Admission to Teacher Education; SLPA 3701

This course will introduce students to issues associated with counseling clients with speech-language pathology-related disorders and their caregivers. Knowledge and practice in counseling strategy, process, skills, and ethics will be emphasized.

CONCEPTUAL FRAMEWORK

The conceptual framework of the College of Education at UWG forms the basis on which programs, courses, experiences, and outcomes are created. By incorporating the theme "Developing Educators for School Improvement," the College assumes the responsibility for preparing educators who can positively influence school improvement through altering classrooms, schools, and school systems (transformational systemic change). Ten descriptors (decision makers, leaders, lifelong learners, adaptive, collaborative, culturally sensitive, empathetic, knowledgeable, proactive, and reflective) are integral components of the conceptual framework and provide the basis for developing educators who are prepared to improve schools through strategic change. National principles (INTASC), propositions (NBPTS), and standards (Learned Societies) also are incorporated as criteria against which candidates are measured.

The mission of the College of Education is to develop educators who are prepared to function effectively in diverse educational settings with competencies that are instrumental to planning, implementing, assessing, and re-evaluating existing or proposed practices. This course's objectives are related directly to the conceptual framework and appropriate descriptors, principles, or propositions, and Learned Society standards are identified for each objective. Class activities and assessments that align with course objectives, course content, and the conceptual framework are identified in a separate section of the course syllabus.

LEARNING OUTCOMES

Link to American Speech, Language, and Hearing Association (ASHA) Knowledge and Skills Acquisition (KASA)

The ASHA KASA document details the Standards for the Certificate of Clinical Competence (SCCC). It is utilized to demonstrate compliance with accreditation standards related to preparing students to meet ASHA certification requirements. It covers nine main knowledge areas (articulation, fluency, voice and resonance, receptive/expressive language, hearing, swallowing, cognitive aspects, social aspects, and communication modalities) across five clinical parameters (etiology, characteristics, prevention, assessment, and intervention). Due to the importance of the KASA standards in tracking and documenting the student's achievement related to these knowledge areas and clinical parameters, they are directly related to the Learning Outcomes. Accordingly, the relevant Standard(s) are noted under each Learning Outcome. The relevant Conceptual Framework areas and INTASC Principles are also noted and discussed in more detail below:

Students will:

1. demonstrate effective interviewing techniques to obtain information (Boles, 2003; Carkhuff 1983, 1993; Crowe, 1997; Flasher & Fogle, 2004; Luterman, 2001; Murphy & Dillon, 2003; Rollins, 2000; Shames, 2000; Shipley, 1997)
(Decision Makers, Leaders, Empathetic, Culturally Sensitive; ASHA KASA Standard IV-G; INTASC* 6, 8);
2. identify physical and emotional factors that affect communication (Boles, 2003; Crowe, 1997; Flasher & Fogle, 2004; Luterman, 2001; Murphy & Dillon, 2003; Rollins, 2000; Shames, 2000; Shipley, 1997)
(Knowledgeable; ASHA KASA Standard III-C; INTASC 1, 2, 5); and
3. select optimal approaches to be utilized in difficult situations (Boles, 2003; Crowe, 1997; Egan, 2002a, b; Flasher & Fogle, 2004; Hill, & O'Brien, 2000; Luterman, 2001; Murphy & Dillon, 2003; Rollins, 2000; Shames, 2000; Shipley, 1997)
(Decision Makers, Adaptive, Empathetic, Knowledgeable, Culturally Sensitive; ASHA KASA Standard IV-G; INTASC 1, 5, 6).

*INTASC refers to the standards of the Interstate New Teacher Assessment and Support Consortium. Information on core principles and standards specific to special education are available from:

ACTIVITIES AND ASSESSMENTS, EVALUATION PROCEDURES, AND GRADING POLICY

Link to Conceptual Framework

The primary focus of this introductory course is on the student becoming familiar with counseling issues in the area of speech language pathology. The students become familiar with the speech language pathologist's role in the process of counseling adult clients and families of children with communication disorders. At the completion of the course the student will have demonstrated achievement in the conceptual framework descriptors as follows: Decision Makers; reflected in student preparation for class participation, preparation for class presentation and selection of appropriate materials for use (Assignments 1, 2), Leaders; reflected during class discussions, class presentations, and knowledge base reflected in various test questions (Assignments 1-5), Adaptive; reflected in student selection of optimal approaches to be utilized in difficult situations and varying cultural and social/emotional issues in clients (Assignment 3), Culturally Sensitive; reflected during assignments related to interviewing and counseling persons from diverse backgrounds (Assignments 1, 3, 4), Empathetic; demonstrated during all counseling related activities and class discussions (Assignments 1-4), Knowledgeable reflected in all class assignments and activities (Assignments 1-5).

Activities and Assessments:

Students will:

1. Conduct and videotape an actual "information-getting interview" on a topic assigned by the instructor. Students must provide their own interviewee. Interviews will take place outside of class on students' own time. The project must include the following:
 - A. Self-developed questionnaire for use during interview
 - B. 3 minute video/DVD clip of interview
 - C. Presentation of project to class
 - D. 3-5 paged reflection paperDiscuss your questionnaire and overall summary of interview. (100 points)

(Learning Outcome 1; written product, presentation)

2. Conduct and videotape an interview in which the objective is to counsel an individual concerning a problem. (100 points)
Students must provide their own interviewee. Interviews will take place outside of class on students' own time. The project must include the following:
 - A. 3 minute video/DVD clip of interview
 - B. Presentation of project to class
 - C. 3-5 page reflection paper
 (Learning Outcomes 2, 3; written product, presentation)

3. Complete an online/independent study pertaining to counseling issues in communication disorders. The final product will be a written paper. (80 points)
(Learning Outcomes 2, 3; written product)

4. Complete in-class topic-related activities. (20 points)
(Learning Outcome 1-3; rubric)

5. Examination. Each student will complete an examination regarding SLP services to multicultural populations. (100 points)
(Learning Outcomes 1-3; exam)

Evaluation Procedures:

Students will be evaluated on a total point system. Extra credit is not an option.

NOTE: Total points may be revised if the students require more structured assignments in order to keep up with the assigned readings.

Grading Policy:

90-100 A (360-400 points)
80-89 B (320-359 points)
70-79 C (280-319 points)
0-69 F (0-279 points)

Opportunities for extra credit will not be provided for this class. Work completed for another class is not acceptable for this class, although students may choose to build on something done for another class.

CLASS POLICIES:

Please note:

As a reflection of university policy, this class is in compliance with all applicable federal, state, and local laws, including but not limited to, the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990, the Civil Rights act of 1964, the Equal Pay Act, the Age Discrimination in Employment Act, the Age Discrimination Act of 1975, Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 (to the Higher Education Act of 1965), the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, the Vietnam-Era Veterans Readjustment Assistance Act of 1974, and all amendments to the foregoing.

As advocates of both the letter and intent of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act, we will make every accommodation possible to support students with disabilities which may negatively impact academic performance. Students with disabilities should make arrangements for the appropriate adaptation or accommodation at the beginning of the semester.

1. Punctuality is one of the hallmarks of a professional. It demonstrates respect for the instructor and your colleagues and promotes classroom instruction. Therefore, two occurrences of tardiness equal one unexcused absence and two unexcused absences will result in a one letter grade reduction. If, for any reason you will be forced to be tardy or absent, you must obtain Instructor approval.
2. Students must exhibit professional conduct and demeanor consistent with ASHA, Georgia Professional Standards Commission, and University guidelines. Failure to do so may result in disciplinary actions and/or a lowering of the grade.
3. Assignments will not be accepted unless pages are held together with a staple or paper clip.
4. Assignments are considered late after the class is dismissed. A 10% reduction in points per day will occur for all late assignments. The point reduction will occur until the assignment is received by the instructor.

5. Assignments may be turned in early. Doing so may allow the student to correct errors and receive full point value if the corrected final version is submitted by the due date.
6. University policy requires that all students have regular access to a computer with at least a certain capability level (see Catalog, Student Handbook, etc.). All students are required to make use of technological advances in coursework. Students will be required to make use of computer resources in this class, including communication (e.g., class announcements) and accessing materials needed for class via the Internet and the UWG portal/pipeline. In addition, students should realize that formal communications from UWG will be sent through campus e-mail (myUWG); this e-mail needs to be checked regularly.

ACTIVITIES AND ASSESSMENTS, EVALUATION PROCEDURES, AND GRADING POLICY

Link to Conceptual Framework

The primary focus of this introductory course is on the student becoming familiar with multicultural and counseling issues in the area of speech language pathology. The students become familiar with communication differences vs. disorder and the speech language pathologist's role in the identification process. At the completion of the course the student will have demonstrated achievement in the conceptual framework descriptors as follows: Decision Makers; reflected in student preparation for class participation, preparation for class presentation and selection of appropriate materials for use (Assignments 1, 2, 4), Leaders; reflected during class discussions, class presentations, and knowledge base reflected in various test questions (Assignments 1, 5), Adaptive; reflected in student participation in response to professional case scenarios (Assignment 3), Empathetic; demonstrated during all activities and class discussions related to ethics and professional conduct (Assignments 1, 2, 3), Knowledgeable reflected in all class assignments and activities (Assignments 1-3).

Activities and Assessments:

Students will:

1. Complete in-class topic-related written journal reflections. The instructor will provide the prompts (50 points).
(Learning Outcomes 1-3; rubric, written product)
2. Complete a case study. The instructor will provide the case scenario and background information (50 points).
(Learning Outcomes 1-3; rubric, written product)
3. Complete a paper related to professional issues in the field. The instructor will provide a list of possible topics (100 points).
(Learning Outcomes 1-4; rubric, written product)
4. Presentation on information learned from paper assignment (50 points).
(Learning Outcomes 1-4; rubric, presentation)
5. Examinations. Each student will complete two examinations related to course discussions, lecture, text, and activities (50 points).

As advocates of both the letter and intent of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act, we will make every accommodation possible to support students with disabilities which may negatively impact academic performance. Students with disabilities should make arrangements for the appropriate adaptation or accommodation at the beginning of the semester.

1. Punctuality is one of the hallmarks of a professional. It demonstrates respect for the instructor and your colleagues and promotes classroom instruction. Therefore, two occurrences of tardiness equal one unexcused absence and two unexcused absences will result in a one letter grade reduction. If, for any reason you will be forced to be tardy or absent, you must obtain Instructor approval.
2. Students must exhibit professional conduct and demeanor consistent with ASHA, Georgia Professional Standards Commission, and University guidelines. Failure to do so may result in disciplinary actions and/or a lowering of the grade.
3. Assignments will not be accepted unless pages are held together with a staple or paper clip.
4. Assignments are considered late after the class is dismissed. A 10% reduction in points per day will occur for all late assignments. The point reduction will occur until the assignment is received by the instructor.

5. Assignments may be turned in early. Doing so may allow the student to correct errors and receive full point value if the corrected final version is submitted by the due date.
6. University policy requires that all students have regular access to a computer with at least a certain capability level (see Catalog, Student Handbook, etc.). All students are required to make use of technological advances in coursework. Students will be required to make use of computer resources in this class, including communication (e.g., class announcements) and accessing materials needed for class via the Internet and the UWG portal/pipeline. In addition, students should realize that formal communications from UWG will be sent through campus e-mail (myUWG); this e-mail needs to be checked regularly.

ACADEMIC HONESTY

Students are expected to adhere to the highest standards of academic honesty. Plagiarism occurs when a student uses or purchases ghostwritten papers. It also occurs when a student utilizes the ideas of or information obtained from another person without giving credit to that person. If plagiarism or another act of academic dishonesty occurs, it will be dealt with in accordance with the academic misconduct policy as stated in The Student Handbook, Undergraduate Catalog, and Graduate Catalog.

Students are expected to comply with the Honor Code for UWG and should have signed the

Rationale for Course Change

SLPA 4790

October 11, 2007

All courses in the Speech-Language Pathology (SLPA) program were modified, added, or deleted in response to the American Speech-Language Hearing Association (ASHA) accreditation requirements. All courses contain Learning Outcomes that are linked to ASHA's Knowledge and Skills (KASAs). In order to align with the newly approved ASHA program, this course is being changed in the following manner:

- Undergraduate program no longer leads to certification as certification is now at graduate level. Therefore, practicum experience is no longer necessary.
- All students will be moved to the new program, which will have fewer credits needed for graduation. Time to graduation will not be affected.

UNIVERSITY
OF WEST GEORGIA
GRADUATE SCHOOL

Proposed Changes to the Foreign Language Requirement for the History Department's Graduate Program

(changes to the History Department's Graduate Handbook are in bold italics)

20. CULTURAL AND GLOBAL LITERACY Requirement

The mission statement of the university asserts that graduate students should increase their "cultural and global literacy," and the History Department has declared in its own mission statement that students should take courses that enhance their global perspective. The department thus requires that all graduate students fulfill a cultural and global literacy requirement. This requirement can be fulfilled in one of two ways: a foreign language option or a cultural and global coursework option.

The History Department recognizes that knowledge of a foreign language is an important means of appreciating cultural diversity and gaining a broader understanding of the world, as well as being a useful skill in an increasingly diverse and globalized world. The department encourages graduate students to fulfill the cultural and global literacy requirement by choosing the foreign language option listed below. The department strongly encourages those students whose M.A. research will involve non-English speaking countries or peoples to choose the foreign language option. Those students who plan to use non-English sources in their research must choose the foreign language option. As most history doctoral programs will require knowledge of at least one foreign language, those students who are planning on pursuing a Ph.D. must also choose this option.

The department also recognizes that some graduate students may learn more about cultural and global issues through additional coursework than through study of a foreign language, and that teachers may find the ESOL (English for Speakers of Other Languages) endorsement more useful than meeting the traditional language requirement. Students may fulfill the cultural and global literacy requirement through the coursework options listed below, but only with the permission of their advisor and the Graduate Coordinator.

Foreign Language Option

Students must show the ability to read and translate into English at least one foreign language by one of the following methods:

1. Earning a B or better in one of the following college level foreign language courses:
 - a. The fourth semester of a college-level foreign language class completed no more than five years before admission to the University of West Georgia: Students deciding to take one or more undergraduate foreign language classes to meet this requirement may do so at any accredited college.
 - b. The University System of Georgia Independent and Distance Learning foreign language courses. Please consult their website at <http://www.georgiacenter.uga.edu/idl/index.phtml> for more information regarding distance learning courses.
 - c. A graduate-level translation course or its equivalent. Georgia State University (GSU) currently offers French/German/Spanish 7000-level Reading Knowledge and Translation courses that would fulfill the department's foreign language option. Students can enroll in these programs by applying through the ARCHE program. Applications are available online at

<http://www.atlantahighered.org/memberservices/crossregapp.pdf>

2. Earning at least an 80% on a translation test administered by the Office of Learning Support and Testing (678-839-6435). This test involves translating one passage into English and answering questions in English about another passage. Dictionaries and grammar books may be used during this exam, but not electronic dictionaries or computer software. Pre-registration for the test, which is offered once a semester, is required and can be done in the Graduate School Office in Cobb Hall. Check with the Graduate School or with the History Department Coordinator of Graduate Studies for pre-registration deadlines each semester. Students may take the translation test a maximum of three times. If a student does not earn at least an 80% on any of the three attempts, then he/she must satisfy the foreign language reading requirement by one of the other options listed in this section.

3. Evidence that a student's native language is a language other than English.

Cultural and Global Coursework Option

With permission from their advisor and the Graduate Coordinator, students may take courses that enhance their cultural and global literacy. They may satisfy this option in one of two ways:

1. Students may take two additional courses that are outside of their major and minor fields of study in order to expand their cultural and global literacy. These courses must be History seminar courses at the 6000-level, and they cannot be counted toward fulfillment of any part of a student's program plan of study (meaning that they will not count toward his/her major field, minor field, elective class, or overall unit count). Both courses should be in non-American fields, and at least one of the courses must be non-western. A grade of "B" or better must be obtained in order for these courses to be counted toward the fulfillment of this requirement.

2. Those students holding a valid Georgia Level 4 Certificate (or its equivalent) may choose to complete the ESOL endorsement (English for Speakers of Other Languages). This nine-unit endorsement is only available to those graduate students who are currently teachers.

We encourage students to fulfill this requirement as soon as possible. Please note that the cultural and global coursework options will likely add an additional semester to a student's graduate program. This requirement should be fulfilled before a student schedules a thesis defense or exit examinations.

Rationale for Change:

In December 2007, History Department faculty approved a program modification to its Graduate Program. The Department would like to rename the current "Foreign Language Requirement" to the "Cultural and Global Literacy Requirement." This will offer enhanced opportunities for students to pursue the university's values of "cultural and global literacy" as stated in its Mission Statement in the Graduate Catalog (p. 11). The new requirements will retain the foreign language component as an option for graduate students to fulfill this requirement. However, it will also offer new opportunities for students to take courses (with permission from their advisor and the Graduate Coordinator) in non-American fields that will broaden their cultural awareness and increase their knowledge of global societies. This modification will not require any additional resources to implement, and we believe that this change will result in additional graduate applications to the History Graduate Program.

Course Description:

This course explores the basic nature and processes of psychospiritual transformation as a lived and enduring change in the understanding of self, others, and world. Toward this end, we will examine in detail the similarities and differences between the psychological and spiritual realms, distinguishing between soul and spirit as fundamental orientations through which we approach reality. We will also explore how these facets are ineluctably entwined through the twin processes of transformation and transcendence. We will examine the pitfalls and distortions that arise when one process is emphasized at the expense of the other, developing categories of psychospiritual pathology and applying them to contemporary psychological and social situations. Our investigation will be conducted in and through a variety of literatures, including those of developmental psychology, existential philosophy, archetypal theory, and the wisdom traditions.

Learning Objectives:

- Define and explain what is meant by “psychospiritual transformation.”
- Explain the relationship between the psychological and spiritual levels of human development. In this explanation, show how each is dependent upon the other, the distinct nature of their complementarity, and the traps that occur when one is emphasized at the expense of the other.
- Provide detailed explanations of developmental, existential, Jungian, and Eastern models of psychospiritual development.
- Delineate between the soul and spirit perspectives, explaining how each relates to the different models of psychospiritual transformation we investigate.
- Research and present an application of a theoretical model of psychospiritual transformation to a social world context.
- Through a series of rigorous reflection papers, demonstrate an integration of the material with one’s own experience of psychospiritual transformation.

Course Requirements & Evaluation:

- Involved participation and class presentations (25%)
- Weekly reflection papers (25%)
- Final paper (50%)

SCIENCE, TECHNOLOGY AND CONSCIOUSNESS
Syllabus

Course Description:

An examination of the individual and social psychological significance of living in an increasingly technological world, including implications for such issues as identity, agency, cultural change and adaptation.

Course Goals:

- To be able to articulate, both in writing and in class discussion, how the rise of science and technology re-defined the nature of being human at two levels.
- An ability to articulate recent science studies and studies of technology understood in their subjective effects. A clear articulation will be grounded in resources from cultural studies, science studies, recent philosophies, psychoanalysis, and critical psychology.
- A clear articulation of the subjective stakes of the global & ecological impact of technology.
- An ability to articulate the revolutionary effects of science on what it means to be human—i.e., the ability to articulate the distinction between its status as a Master Discourse & its paradigmatic shift in the relation of the human world.

Program Goals in Relation to Course

The doctoral program in Individual, Organizational, and Community Transformation:

- Entails focused exploration of the dynamic interface between consciousness and society, individual experience and collective structures. This course looks at the interface of subjectivity and science and technology.

- Explores a variety of theoretical perspectives support the exploration: humanistic, transpersonal, existential-phenomenological, critical, psychoanalytic, Eastern and Western spiritual and wisdom traditions, and neuroscience. This course will draw from critical, psychoanalytic, neuroscience and traditional psychological approaches to the advent of science and technology.
- Students pursue their own interests with global understanding and local sensitivity. See assignments.
- The program aims to nourish students seeing themselves as agents of sustainable change at various levels of psychological meaning and cultural structure. Practically this includes work in education, health care, social services, government, religion, non-profit and corporate settings, and beyond. See assignments.
- Program encourages a deep sense of reflexivity in all of its courses: Reflexivity includes the process of increasing self consciousness/awareness. But it also involves the study of social practices and representations. In this course a re-current questions is: How does the Other see me? How am I created by social objects, practices, interactions?

Course Description:

"The problem with words is that you do not know whose mouths they've been in."
--Nikolas Rose

Although you have likely heard Descartes' infamous dictum "cogito ergo sum" (I think therefore I am), this class begins with an altogether different premise: "Communicamus ergo sum" (We communicate therefore I am). There are two essential points here; the first is that language is not the possession of a single individual, but rather the product of social interdependence. As Nikolas Rose said in the above quote, words are not individual possessions, but are social creations. The second idea is that our individual identities emerge out of (are a result of) communicative social relationships. This idea may sound simple, but it's gravity for psychology is enormous.

The goal of this class is to explore how we construct our identities in everyday conversations and how such identities change across time and context. The study of discourse is the study of how we actively use language in our everyday settings and routines. Broadly, it is the study of human meaning-making and human development. Throughout this class, we will focus on how people make sense of themselves and others in social interactions. Studying discourse means seeing people as social actors who perform themselves with and against others over time. In addition, studying discourse means becoming familiar with how to work with and analyze recorded conversation.

'Discursive psychology' (DP) is the socio-cultural orientation we will assume. 'Discourse analysis' is its methodological counterpart. Both 'discursive psychology' and 'discourse analysis' are becoming increasingly prevalent in the social sciences, especially in Psychology. Learning how appreciate conversational interaction is a crucial part of learning how to become a social-scientific researcher. But DP is more than just a method for examining social interaction or social development. Discursive psychology additionally offers a rather progressive perspective on what it means to use language, as well as an approach to knowledge construction that addresses a wide range of problems within the discipline of Psychology—for instance, the problem of the 'self', the problems of 'objectivity' and 'subjectivity', of 'mind', and the role of language in development. Becoming knowledgeable about the relationship between social discourse and human development will allow you to join in on a range of debates about the state of psychology in contemporary academic life.

Course Objectives:

"The world does not speak. Only we do. The world can, once we have programmed ourselves with a language, cause us to hold beliefs. But it cannot propose a language for us to speak. Only other human beings can do that."

-- Richard Rorty

Upon completing this course, students should be able to:

- Explain how discursive psychology is a qualitative method that has emerged as a viable psychological orientation.
- Articulate some of the more pertinent challenges that discursive psychology poses to traditional psychology.
- Be able to recognize some of the principles of discursive work by examining conversational data.
- Be able to articulate a discursive perspective on 'prejudice'—where prejudice is seen as something we 'do' and 'avoid doing' in conversations with others.
- Be able to explain the idea of 'social development' from a discursive perspective.
- Be able to explain the discursive position on 'attitudes'
- Be able to explain what it means to say that "identities micro-developmentally emerge in everyday conversations and then consolidate across time and context".
- Collect and transcribe a modicum of data.
- Begin to work individually and collaboratively on analyzing that data from a micro-developmental and discursive perspective.
- Put together a small-scale presentation of your analysis.

Tentative Schedule

TOPICS ADDRESSED:

- I. What does it mean to study “discourse”?
- II. The relationship between discourse and identity
- III. The relationship between discourse and Psychology
 - a. A discursive approach to “minds”
 - b. A discursive approach to “personality”
 - c. A discursive approach to “development”
- IV. Special Topic: The development of prejudice in talk
 - a. Racism
 - b. Sexual Discrimination
 - c. Sexism and Heterosexism
 - d. Homophobia
- V. The development of identities from a discourse perspective
 - a. Identity development as ideological dilemma management
 - b. Identity development as cultural discourse management
 - c. The micro-development of identities-in-talk
 - d. Identity development and narratives

Class Policies

“I personally believe we developed language because of our deep inner need to complain.”
-- Jane Wagner

EXTENSIONS & MISSED DEADLINES

There will be no un-penalized extensions for any of the assignments, unless there is a serious illness or family/personal emergencies. In all other cases, all late assignments will be penalized 2 pts per day late. If you have any questions about penalties for late assignments, please talk to me (preferably before the assignment is late). It is always a good idea to email me or see me at the first sign that you will not be able to complete your assignments on time.

MISSING CLASS

Because this is a seminar class, coming to class and participating is essential. Our goal is to establish a lively exchange of ideas. As noted above, progressively active participation is what I grade.

ACADEMIC INTEGRITY

All individual written work is expected to be your own, and plagiarism is highly unacceptable. Proper documentation and citation is required when attributing ideas/information. Please see me if you have questions about how to do this.

EXTRA CREDIT

There is no formal extra credit in this class. Instead, I allow you to revise/rewrite your reflection summaries. This way, you are given “extra” chances to improve your work, as well as detailed feedback from me helping you to do this. Ultimately, I feel this is a much better solution to typical “extra credit” procedures.

ACCOMODATIONS FOR DISABILITIES

Accommodations and modifications can be made for all assignments for those with specific learning disabilities (professional documentation required). Accommodations will be made for writing assignments, verbal project presentations, group work, and lecture formats. I am more than happy to re-structure aspects of the class and my teaching to best suite your learning needs. Please see me to arrange for this.

PREJUDICE/DISCRIMINATION

I expect everyone in this class to practice tolerance and acceptance. This includes fostering a “safe” classroom space for the open expression of ideas. It also means striving to avoid sexist, heterosexist, racist, and classist (among other forms of discrimination) language and attitudes. I will point out ways to do this in the classroom.

Course Description

The breakdown of the traditional religious bases of Europe and the United States and the interface of diverse cultures in a global society highlight the key philosophical problem of the modern West: uncertainty about the very possibility of correct knowledge and objective ethics. No consensus whatever exists on these critical matters, so humanity cannot resolve the pressing problems of pluralism and secularity. Increasingly, this same state of affairs pertains in individual communities and organizations and challenges their stability and the wellbeing of the people within them. Often attributed to religion and, perforce, confounded by differing opinions, epistemology and ethics—the study of knowledge and values, of truth and goodness, respectively—are matters of the human mind; indeed, they are concerns unique to the human species. They express and pertain to consciousness and, as such, are psychological in the first instance. Moreover, they are central to any transformational interventions: How can one act effectively without knowing the facts of the matter, and how can one guide a process of change without determining a worthwhile goal? Hence, epistemology and ethics represent paradigmatic instances of the connection between consciousness and society; and, especially in critical times like ours, an understanding of knowing and loving is a prerequisite for effective assessment, intervention, and transformation. To elucidate the crisis in these two disciplines, the course provides a historical overview of them; and to offer realistic hope of addressing the crisis, the course focuses on Bernard J. F. Lonergan's analysis of intentional consciousness and its inherent norms for correct knowledge and responsible decision. The course will be structured in traditional seminar format.

Learning Outcomes

- Summarize the central epistemological positions of key philosophers in the Western tradition
- Summarize the central ethical positions of key philosophers in the Western tradition
- Describe the connection between human consciousness, and knowing and loving
- List the four dimensions of consciousness in Lonergan's analysis and explain their relationship and interaction

- List and elaborate the three facets of human knowing in Lonergan's cognitional theory
- Explain the two criteria of the good in Lonergan's ethical theory
- Explain how this theory is grounded in data and qualifies as an instance of empirical science
- Explain how attention to human perception and oversight of intelligent insight and judgment result in the inability of epistemologies to account for valid knowledge of objective reality
- Suggest how the elements of Lonergan's theory could be discerned in individual behavior or group problem solving
- State how this study has effected some transformation in your own consciousness

Course Requirements

- Study of assigned readings and reflection on the issues. The sequence of readings follows the Course Outline below. As the course progresses, the time allotted each topic may need to be adjusted.
- Active participation in the seminar through regular attendance and informed contribution to respectful discussion.
- Turn-taking in presenting oral summaries of the week's assigned readings.
- A mid-term paper of about 10 pages, (a) highlighting the contemporary problem of epistemology and ethics (b) via an objective summary of their histories in the modern era
- A term paper of 20 to 25 pages, treating a central aspect of the course. The topic must be discussed with and approved by the Instructor.

Course Evaluation

Course grades will depend on class participation (20%), which includes preparation for seminar discussion; the mid-term paper (30%); and the term paper (50%). Letter grades will be assigned as follows: A=90+; B=80-89; C=70-79; D=60-69; F=<60.

Written Assignments are to be typed in 12-point Times New Roman font and double-spaced on 8.5" x 11" paper, with 1" margins on the top, bottom, and sides of the pages, and pages are to be numbered and stapled together. Papers must bear a title, be organized with sections and subtitles, and be fully documented. Papers are to be written with correct American English spelling, grammar, and punctuation and are to follow APA style and, in the event of numerous errors in these areas, will be returned for rewriting. Students are advised to use a word processor and run grammar and spell checks before submitting the paper. Maimon and Peritz's (2002) A Writer's Resource (Boston: McGrawHill) is the accepted reference on writing at UWG. Papers are not to deviate significantly from the required lengths.

COURSE DESCRIPTION:

This course introduces depth psychology through a reading of Freud's texts and some exploration of the basic schools in psychoanalysis after Freud. The emphasis of this course is on clinical practice and how fundamental concepts in depth psychology such as the drive, transference, repetition, sexual difference and the unconscious are handled by Freud, and following and diverging from Freud, by C.G. Jung, Melanie Klein, Heinz Kohut and Jacques Lacan, among others.

COURSE OBJECTIVES

- Articulate through discussion and writing the clinical issues that motivated Freud's writing and changing concepts.
- Articulate through discussion and writing what is at stake in the different ways of reading Freud.
- Articulate through discussion and writing what is at stake in different theoretical approaches and accounts of depth psychology and psychotherapeutic process.
- Articulate through discussion and writing the clinical issues motivating such distinctions.
- Articulate critical discussion and critical writing skills after reading Freud and his followers.
- Demonstrate knowledge, perception and critical understanding necessary to intellectual and personal growth and social responsibility.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS & EVALUATION

- Regular attendance and class presentations (25%)
- Weekly reflection papers (25%)
- Final paper (50%)

Course Description

Examination of the evolution of human consciousness, through a focus on key historical epochs in civilization and the transformations in consciousness wrought in each.

Course Objective

The objective of this course is to provide students an orientation to the historical evolution of consciousness.

Learning Outcomes

- Define consciousness and explain how its thematic structure is individuated, temporal, social, worlded, and transcendent.
- Summarize the major epochal movements in the evolution of consciousness
- For each of these movements, describe the thematic structure of consciousness
- Explain how given historical changes reflect deeper level changes in the nature of consciousness.

Course Readings

- Tarnas, R. (1991). The Passion of the Western Mind: Understanding the Ideas That Have Shaped our World View. New York: Ballantine.

Additional supplemental readings to be assigned on electronic reserve at the UWG Library web site.

Course Evaluation

As a seminar class, students will be expected to participate actively in class discussions, coming to each class already well-prepared to discuss the readings for that class. The course grade will be based on the equally weighted values of: 1) the quality of participation in class discussion; 2) an integrative essay paper; 3) a comprehensive final examination.

Course Outline

The Evolution of Consciousness in Western Culture

I. Introduction (2 classes) Definition of consciousness. Its thematic structure as individuated, temporal, social, worldly, and transcendent. Basic principles of evolution. The meaning of "western" and its relation to "eastern." Reasons for focusing on western culture.

II. Ancient Occidental Consciousness [5000 BC to 500 BC] (3 classes) Thematic structure of consciousness as manifested in the ancient cultures of the Middle East, especially the Egyptian, the Persian, and the Hebraic synthesis of these two. Topics include: growth of agriculture, code of laws, writing, monotheism. Includes the influence of India on the development of occidental consciousness.

III. Classical Hellenic Consciousness [500 BC to 500 AD] (5 classes) Thematic structures of consciousness as manifested in the Greek culture of antiquity. Topics include: myth, tragedy, and the play of the gods; the Apollonian and the Dionysian; Pythagoras' 'form,' Heraclitus' 'change,' Parmenides' 'changelessness,' Democritus' 'matter,' Plato's 'idea,' Sophocles' 'fate,' and Plotinus' 'mysticism.' Includes the Roman synthesis of Hebraic and Greek consciousness.

IV. Medieval Christian Consciousness [500 to 1450] (3 classes) Thematic structures of consciousness as manifested in the Catholicism of western Europe in the Middle Ages. Topics include: the theology of Church fathers such as Augustine and Aquinas, as well as such mystics as Jean d'Arc, Teresa d'Avila, and St. John of the Cross, as well as the impact of such historical events as the Crusades, feudalism, monarchy, and the bubonic plague. Includes the influence of Byzantine and Islamic culture, and the late medieval rediscovery of Hellenistic thought.

V. Renaissance Humanistic Consciousness [1450 to 1650] (4 classes) Thematic structures of consciousness as manifested in the Italian Renaissance and its spread to Holland, France, England and Germany. Topics include: the Copernican revolution; the impact of the printing press and the spread of literacy; Renaissance art, science, literature, religion and philosophy, especially DaVinci, Montaigne, Shakespeare, Erasmus, and Luther.

VI. Modern Scientific Consciousness [1650 to 1918] (5 classes) Thematic structures of consciousness as manifested in modern European thought, and its spread in America. Topics include: the eclipse of the Renaissance; the new epistemologies (Cartesian rationalism, British empiricism, logical positivism); the culminating impact of mechanistic science in industrialization; and the consequent emergence of 'mass consciousness,' its critics (Marx, Kierkegaard, Nietzsche), its unconsciousness, and its psychologies (psychoanalysis, behaviorism).

VII. Postmodern Fragmented Consciousness [1918 to 1999] (4 classes) Thematic structures of consciousness as manifested in contemporary bureaucratic culture. Topics include the economic impact of corporate capitalism and consumer culture; the scientific revolutions of relativity theory, quantum physics, and chaos theory; the ascendancy of the technological attitude; the rise of fundamentalism; the new philosophies of existentialism, phenomenology, and poststructuralism.

VIII. Visionary Holistic Consciousness [2000 -] (4 classes) Thematic structures of consciousness as manifested in currently emergent alternative culture. Topics include the impact of globalization; deep ecology; holistic health; integration of Asian thought; intuition and alternative modes of knowing; supraconsciousness.

Psyc: 8290: Approaches to Community
Course Syllabus

Course Description

Identification of the interplay of social, individual, and other factors at work in given community issues and problems.

Course overview:

This seminar examines the history, values, assumptions, methodologies, applications, and possibilities of a psychology for which community is the basic unit of analysis and intervention. The question of whether certain incarnations of community psychology actually push us to re-consider our notions of both methodology and of the psychological subject is also addressed, particularly in terms of critical psychology readings. The course will draw from classical community psychology, ecological psychology, participatory action research, and critical psychology towards an engaged exploration of the affordances of various community models and strategies for substantive and meaningful community transformation.

Course objectives:

- In writing a critical evaluation of community psychology, students will critically examine a range of understandings of 'community' as historically and culturally situated.
- In writing a critical evaluation of community psychology, students will develop an account of the environment as implicated in concepts of community.
- To explore the reciprocal relationship between persons and their community environments through discussions and writing about theory, research, and strategic action.
- Be able to discuss the framework, context, and aims of the community approach to psychology
- In writing a proposal for a community based assessment and intervention, students will explore the limits of the community mental health movement and how newer perspectives might fill in some of the gaps
- Be able to discuss the theories of social production of psychopathology: Emphasizing the role of poverty, economic insecurity, powerlessness, and inadequate social resources
- To articulate an understanding of the problem of "driven vs. hypothesis driven research" in psychology
- In writing a proposal for a community based assessment and intervention, students will demonstrate competence in assessing community needs and desires

- In writing a proposal for a community based assessment and intervention, students will explore a range of possibilities for effecting transformation in communities.

Themes and Topics Covered:

I. Introduction and Overview: Community Psychology

- A. History and Context of Community Approaches to Psychology
- B. Values and Assumptions of Community Psychology
- C. Ethical and Epistemological Considerations
- D. Ecology and Community

II. Understanding Communities

- A. Varieties of Community
- B. Disempowered and Marginalized Communities
- C. Cyber Communities (and other new developments)
- D. International Perspectives on Community

III. Research in Communities

- A. Traditional tools of Community Psychology

B. Action Research

IV. Assessing Community Strengths and Challenges

V. Intervention, Prevention, and Empowerment

VI. The Critical Turn in Community Psychology: The Emergent Subject

VI. Possibilities and Limitations of Psychologists' Work in Communities

Assignments:

A. Critical Evaluation of Community Psychology (10-15 pages):

A review of community psychology, situated historically and culturally, which is to lead to an (1) assessment of its shortcomings and challenges and (2) analysis of how these might be addressed through action research or other newer approaches to community intervention. Focus on a particular aspect of community or a specific community challenge of interest to the student may guide the assessment and analysis.

B. Proposal for a Community Based Assessment and Intervention (20-25 pages):

Student will review literature relevant to a problem of choice and design a community based intervention targeting prevention at primary, secondary, and tertiary levels. The proposal should incorporate principles of traditional community psychology, action research, critical psychology, or some creative combination of these. The proposed action plan should be realistic, achievable, and relevant to the community. An account of how community relevance is to be assessed and addressed should be included in the proposal.

Course Description:

This course offers students theoretical understanding of and practice in a variety of methods for cultivating conscious awareness. These methods include meditation, somatic disciplines, and analytic investigations grounded in ancient wisdom traditions. Through meditation practices students will learn how to calm their minds, cultivate mindfulness, and systematically explore their conscious experience to identify its contents and processes. Contemplative exercises will explore the nature of reality and provide support for meditation. Students will also learn chi gong exercises and a basic tai chi form (Cheng Man Ching, Yang-style) to be practiced throughout the semester, providing a somatic discipline relating to the balancing and cultivation of internal energies. Additional practices will be introduced, drawn from the mental (e.g., practices for cultivating positive regard and altruistic impulse), physical (e.g., hatha yoga, creative movement) and creative (expressive arts) spheres. Additionally, we will learn the focusing technique of Eugene Gendlin and situate our understanding of this practice vis-à-vis the other practices engaged. Finally, we will apply what we are learning toward working mindfully and efficiently with one's own projects and in the world. Students will maintain weekly reflection papers that integrate readings, lecture material, and class discussions with personal experience.

Course Objectives:

- Through writing, discussion, and practical exercises, students will demonstrate an understanding of a variety of methods used for the development and expansion of conscious awareness..
- Demonstrate through performance or written reflection the fruition of having cultivated a disciplined practice—such as the regular practice of tai chi, meditation, or analytic contemplation—that enhances conscious awareness.
- Articulate the intricate connection between mental and physical process.
- Articulate the basics of contemplative education; be able to apply them in actual group settings.

- Articulate the theoretical understandings of consciousness and apply this understanding to one's own immediate experience and to the potentials for cultivating greater conscious awareness.

Course Requirements & Evaluation:

- Regular attendance and class presentations (25%)
- Weekly reflection papers (25%)
- Final paper (50%)

Course Syllabus: Program Evaluation

Course Description: Program evaluation was designed to assist in improving the quality of social programs. The notion of program improvement calls for holistic approaches aimed at informing as to why and how programs are working well or not so. Holistic analysis avoids a simplistic approach to the question of whether a program is working or not. Moreover, holistic evaluation strategies are better able to address the complexities of contemporary social problems and system change. Thus the course will focus on developing understanding and skills as preparation for evaluating multiple levels of program effectiveness. The skill base will involve a variety of research and evaluation methods, emphasizing naturalistic, qualitative, participatory, and systemic assessment to complement quantitative measures of effectiveness.

Course Objectives:

1. Articulation, both in class discussion and in two evaluative case studies, of the purposes and functions of program evaluation, both historical and contemporary.
2. Clear articulation and implementation of a conceptual framework for multi-tiered evaluation.
3. Clear articulation and implementation of multiple evaluation designs, with an emphasis on holistic evaluations.
4. The creation of evaluative case studies that clearly delineate objectives and indicators of program improvement.
5. To collect and interpret a variety of data formats relevant to program evaluation.
6. The development of an evaluation plan specific to a designated context of interest.
7. Clear articulation of the values involved in and reflected in program evaluation efforts.

Principal Texts:

Fitzpatrick, J.L, Sanders, J.P., and Worthen, B.P. (2003). Program Evaluation: Alternative Approaches and Practical Guidelines, Third Edition. Allyn and Bacon.

Williams, D. D. (Ed.) (1986). Naturalistic evaluation. New Directions for Program Evaluation, 30.

Assignments:

1. Two presentations of an evaluation case study (50% of final grade- 25% each)

This will involve presentation and analysis of an effective program evaluation effort in relation to a problem of the student's choice (approximately 30 minutes) and discussion with class.

2. Preparation of an evaluation plan (Final paper: 50% final grade):

Plan will include

1. Defining the problem and describing the intervention
2. Development of indicators
3. Process evaluation
4. Summative evaluation

Growth is always loss.

James Hillman

Psychotherapy is grief work.

Robert Romanyshyn

*To everything there is a season, and a time to every purpose under heaven. A time to mourn, and a time to dance;
Ecclesiastes 3:1,4*

Course Objectives:

- Articulate the development of one's capacity to sit with what is disturbing; a clear discussion of how this becomes (or does not become) an integral component of your own personal development.
- Create and maintain an ever expanding personal loss history and provide clear articulation of the integration of theoretical models and empirical studies with your understanding of these experiences.
- Be able to articulate the various types of loss that occur throughout the lifespan, including the psychological dimensions of loss as a lived experience. This articulate should reflect an awareness of the broad picture of each loss context, including its transformative potential.
- Be able to articulate the psychological aspects of bereavement and its transformative potentials from traditional, psychoanalytic, existential, phenomenological, cross-cultural, Jungian, and Buddhist perspectives.
- Articulate a critical understanding of these theoretical frameworks, being able to clearly specify the strengths and limitations of each.

Course Description:

This course promotes human growth and potential through both experiential and theoretical encounters with loss as a human, psychological, and personal phenomenon. Loss is a broad category that includes, among other things, habitual patterns, life situations, the deaths of loved ones, and the dying of ourselves. First we will review the losses we necessarily encounter as we move through the lifespan. Then we will read and critically examine classic papers in the bereavement literature, eventually exploring a new paradigm that holds more potential in accounting for the processes of personal transformation that often accompany mourning. Principles of bereavement counseling will be introduced and evaluated in light of these theoretical considerations. In addition, we will examine death as the ultimate loss. These processes will be supported through the timely completion of weekly reflection papers. You will also be asked to research a bereavement or loss context that is of particular interest to you and give a brief but formal presentation in class.

One of the four hours of this class will take the form of an in vivo bereavement support group in which you disclose and process your own personal loss experiences, and learn to appropriately and non-judgmentally support your classmates. It is not necessary to have suffered a dramatic loss in your life. This hour of the class may evolve into another form depending on the unfolding dynamic and consensus of the group. There will be some simple homework assignments. The primary objectives are to

- gain experience with grief counseling
- deepen appropriation of the theoretical material through personal application
- deepen personal development

Confidentiality of all personal material shared in class is a must!

Required Texts:

Pope, A. (2006). From child to elder: Personal transformation in becoming an orphan at midlife. New York: Peter Lang.

Worden, J. W. (2002). Grief counseling and grief therapy: A handbook for the mental health practitioner. 3rd edition. New York: Springer Publishing Company, Inc.

Tolstoy, L. (1981). The death of Ivan Ilyich. New York: Bantam Books.

Romanyshyn, R. (1999). The soul in grief: Love, death and transformation. Berkeley, CA: North Atlantic Books.

Nhat Hanh, T. (2002). No death, no fear: Comforting wisdom for life. New York: Riverhead Books.

Levine, S. (1997). A year to live: How to live this year as if it were your last. New York: Bell Tower.

Additional required readings are on e-reserve

Additional Materials:

Please acquire and bring to each class a sketch book of approximately 9x12 inches along with graphite pencils, colored pencils, pastels, charcoal, or other materials. The choice of writing/drawing implements is entirely yours.

Course Format:

This course will be conducted in seminar format. Student participation is a critical component of the course; therefore, students are expected to read the assignments carefully before each class. This class will place particular emphasis on contemplative methods and will employ the use of silence freely. The means by which we communicate will frequently be moderated by techniques designed to move us into a place of internal processing.

Course Requirements:

Class participation: Active participation includes respectfully listening to your classmates as well as offering your own ideas, thoughts, and experiences. Intellectual comments should be kept germane to the material at hand; personal comments should be considerate and non-judgmental. You are also to take up contemplative exercises in an open and earnest way. Attendance to each class is expected, not optional. If you must miss a class due to circumstances beyond your control, please let me know in advance, and we will work together to determine how you might compensate for the work missed.

Weekly reflection papers: Each week you will turn in a written reflection on the reading assignment. In your paper, please seek an integration of the content of the material with your own experience and/or creative appropriation. Please do not merely summarize the material, and do not simply “free associate” to it. Strike a balance, grounding your reflections in the readings. Your paper should be typed, 1-3 pages in length, Times New Roman font, 1 inch margins. These papers are intended to prepare you for your engagement in class—as such, I will not accept late papers.

Original Research Presentation:

You will be asked to research a bereavement or loss context that is of particular interest to you. You will be provided 10 minutes in class to give your presentation, which should be focused and on point. Our class room is now equipped with power point, and you are invited to use this resource for a more informative presentation. You may work together in groups for this project, whereupon you can add your 10 minutes together for a longer presentation. Limit of 3 students, please. Each of you will submit an outline of your presentation and a list of resources used. Your bibliography should include at least three outside journal articles or books. Wikipedia is not an acceptable resource, although using it might point you in the right direction. Your proposed topic is due on August 30. Dates for presentation will be announced on September 6.

Final Integrative-Reflective Paper: On the last day of class you will turn in a final paper, 10-15 pages, typed, double-spaced, with 12 pt., Times New Roman font, and standard margins. This paper will integrate your learning throughout the semester in a personally reflective way. I will be looking for clarity of expression as well as quality of content. I will give more guidance on this paper later.

Final Oral Exam: At the discretion of the instructor, we may have a final oral exam on the last day of class (Dec. 6). Details will come later.

Grades:

Class Participation	10%
Weekly reflection papers	20%
Original research presentation	20%
Final Paper/Exam	50%

Rationale

Ed.S. in School Library Media Program – Plan F

Following a careful review of the current program and feedback from students, the School Library Media (SLM) Curriculum Committee made the decision that the Ed.S. school library program should be revised to allow students more flexibility in tailoring the program to their individual needs. The proposed changes include the deletion of one required class – allowing students to add a third elective, as well as modification of the elective choices.

The following changes (presented in the order in which they appear on the proposed program sheet) are proposed for the Ed.S. in SLM Program in order to better prepare and meet the needs of our advanced SLM students:

Area I – No changes are proposed in this area.

Area II

- 18 hours must be earned in this area in both the current and proposed programs. The current program includes 4 required courses and 2 elective courses. The proposed program requires 3 courses and includes 3 electives. Specifically, the Issues in IT course has been removed as a required course since SLM students must take the Issues in SLM course which is specifically tailored to SLM content. This means they can take an additional elective. Since SLM students generally have NO electives at the masters (initial certification) level, it is critical that they have an opportunity to fill technology and/or other gaps they perceive by selecting electives that meet their unique needs rather than taking an overabundance of required courses.
- In addition, MEDT 6462 (Administration of Instructional Technology Programs) and MEDT 7461 (Instructional Design) have been removed from the list of electives since media specialists must take MEDT 7461 as part of their masters/certification program, and since MEDT 6462 is specifically oriented towards IT. In addition, media specialists take MEDT 6461 (Administration of the School Library Media Center) during their masters/certification programs and much of this content overlaps MEDT 6462.
- MEDT 7465 has been revised to include topics beyond an initial introduction to children and young adult materials. This course is no longer required as part of the masters/certification programs since the introduction to children and young adult materials is encompassed in MEDT 6465, Selection and Materials. Thus, the revision of MEDT 7465 makes this class a better fit for Ed.S. students seeking additional work in the area of children and young adult resources.
- MEDT 7485, Special Topics in Media, has been added as an elective option. It is already on the books and will serve as a special topics course allowing groups of students to pursue areas of interest not covered in other courses (not an independent study).

- All Area II courses are designated to be taken at the beginning or middle of the program, with the 3 required courses to be taken the first semester they are offered during a students program.

Area III – No changes are proposed in this area.

A statement has been added to notify students of action that will be taken should a student make a C in a course.

A grade of "C" in any course in the program results in a review of the student's status by the Graduate School and the Media and Instructional Technology Department. The department determines the student's eligibility to continue in the program. A grade of "C" in a second course will automatically result in a one year suspension from the program.

Rationale for Course Change

SLPA 6741, Dysphagia

October 11, 2007

All courses in the Speech-Language Pathology (SLPA) program were modified, added, or deleted in response to requirements of the American Speech-Language Hearing Association's (ASHA) application requirements. For purposes of the ASHA application process, all courses contain Learning Outcomes that are linked to ASHA's Knowledge and Skills (KASAs). In order to align with the newly approved ASHA program, this course is being changed in the following manner:

- The original course included two major areas in speech-language pathology; these areas will be separated into two courses.

New Description (Proposed):

Prerequisites: Admission to Teacher Education; advisor permission

This course studies swallowing disorders in pediatric and adult populations. Emphasis is on etiologies, characteristics, prevention, assessment/differential diagnosis, cultural factors, and intervention approaches to management and habilitation/rehabilitation. Interdisciplinary approaches to the assessment and treatment of swallowing disorders are discussed.

COURSE DESCRIPTION

Prerequisites: Admission to Teacher Education; advisor permission

This course studies swallowing disorders in pediatric and adult populations. Emphasis is on etiologies, characteristics, prevention, assessment/differential diagnosis, cultural factors, and intervention approaches to management and habilitation/rehabilitation. Interdisciplinary approaches to the assessment and treatment of swallowing disorders are discussed.

CONCEPTUAL FRAMEWORK

The conceptual framework of the College of Education at UWG forms the basis on which programs, courses, experiences and outcomes are created. By incorporating the theme "Developing Educators for School Improvement," the College assumes responsibility for preparing educators who can positively influence school improvement through altering classrooms, schools, and school systems (transformational systemic change). Ten descriptors (decision-makers, leaders, lifelong learners, adaptive, collaborative, culturally sensitive, empathetic, knowledgeable, proactive, and reflective) are integral components of the conceptual framework and provide the basis for developing educators who are prepared to improve schools through strategic change. National principles (INTASC, propositions (NBPTS), and standards (Learned Societies) also are incorporated as criteria against which candidates are measured.

The mission of the College of Education is to develop educators who are prepared to function effectively in diverse educational settings with competencies that are instrumental to planning, implementing, assessing, and re-evaluating existing or proposed practices. This course's objectives are related directly to the conceptual framework and appropriate descriptors, principles or propositions and Learned Society standards are identified for each objective. Class activities and assessments that align with course objectives, course content, and the conceptual framework are identified in a separate section of the course syllabus.

LEARNING OUTCOMES

Link to American Speech, Language, and Hearing Association (ASHA) Knowledge and Skills Acquisition (KASA)

The ASHA KASA document details the Standards for the Certificate of Clinical Competence (SCCC). It is utilized to demonstrate compliance with accreditation standards related to preparing students to meet ASHA certification requirements. It covers nine main knowledge areas (articulation, fluency, voice and resonance, receptive/expressive language, hearing, swallowing, cognitive aspects, social aspects, and communication modalities) across five clinical parameters (etiology, characteristics, prevention, assessment, and intervention). Due to the importance of the KASA standards in tracking and documenting the student's achievement related to these knowledge areas and clinical parameters, they are directly related to the Learning Outcomes. Accordingly, the relevant Standard(s) are noted under each Learning Outcome. The relevant Conceptual Framework areas and NBPTS Propositions are also noted and discussed in more detail below.

Students will:

1. identify the biological and neurological structures involved in swallowing disorders and discuss their roles in normal and disordered populations (Arvedson & Brodsky, 2001; Huckabee & Cannito, 1999; Logemann, 1998; Perlman & Schulze-Delrieu, 1997) (ASHA KASA Standard III-B; Empathetic, Knowledgeable, Reflective; NBPTS* 2, 5);
2. describe the etiologies and characteristics of neurological pathologies and/or processes on swallowing (Arvedson & Brodsky, 2001; Huckabee & Cannito, 1999; Logemann, 1998); (ASHA KASA Standard III-C; Empathetic, Knowledgeable, Reflective; NBPTS 2, 3, 5);
3. differentially diagnose the various types of swallowing disorders (Arvedson & Brodsky, 2001; Logemann, 1998); (ASHA KASA Standard III-D; Culturally Sensitive, Empathetic, Knowledgeable, Leaders, Lifelong Learners, Proactive, Reflective; NBPTS 2, 3, 4, 5);

4. describe the management and remediation of specific deficits in children with swallowing disorders (Arvedson, 1997, 2000; Arvedson & Brodsky, 2001; Dikeman, & Riquelme, 2002; Logemann, 1998; Riquelme, 2004; Swigert, 1998)
(ASHA KASA Standard III-D, IV-G; Decision Makers, Adaptive, Collaborative, Culturally Sensitive, Empathetic, Knowledgeable, Leaders; Proactive, Reflective; NBPTS 2, 3, 4, 5);
and
5. describe the management and remediation of specific deficits in adults with swallowing disorders (Dikeman, & Riquelme, 2002; Huckabee & Cannito, 1999; Logemann, 1998; Riquelme, 2004; Sonies 1996).
(ASHA KASA Standard III-D, IV-G; Decision Makers, Adaptive, Collaborative, Culturally Sensitive, Empathetic, Knowledgeable, Leaders; Proactive, Reflective; NBPTS 2, 3, 4, 5)

NBPTS* refers to standards of the National Board for Professional Teaching Standards, a set of standards adopted for graduate education programs in the College of Education; information on the Five Core Propositions is available from:

ACTIVITIES AND ASSESSEMENTS, EVALUATION PROCEDURES, AND GRADING POLICY

Link to Conceptual Framework

The focus of the course is to introduce candidates to more challenging anatomical and functional intervention aspects of the profession. At the end of this course, candidates will demonstrate skills for Decision Makers: determining the direction of current trends in the profession for clients with swallowing disorders (assignments 1, 3, 4), Leaders: guiding intervention directions in the profession (assignments 1, 3, 4), Lifelong Learners: promoting skills for continual scrutiny of professional treatments (assignments 2, 3), Adaptive performances: changing trends and directions as dictated by research-based findings for swallowing disorders (assignment 3), Collaborative: working with peers to help determine best practices and trends for serving clients with neurological impairments (assignment 3), Culturally Sensitive: considering the impacts of cultural backgrounds on intervention needs (assignments 1, 3, 4), Empathetic: understanding and accepting the individual and group needs related to treatment (assignments 1, 3), Knowledgeable: versed in the theories, and practical applications of research-based techniques (assignments 1, 2, 3, 4), Proactive: able to accurately predict implications for future intervention strategies in the profession (assignments 3, 4) and Reflective: using research findings to appropriately guide daily practice in serving clients with anatomical and swallowing disorders (assignments 3, 4).

Activities and Assessments:

1. Dysphagia Assessment Interpretation: Each student will analyze, interpret, and give recommendations based on diagnostic data provided by the instructor. Cultural considerations will be identified. This assignment is an artifact for Foliotek. (Learning Outcomes 1, 2, 3, 4, 5; rubric)
2. Observation/Reaction Paper: Each student will be expected to conduct an on-site observation of a clinical dysphagia evaluation or a Videofluoroscopy/Modified Barium swallow study. Upon completion of the observation, each student will submit a 5-7 page reaction paper. The paper is to include pertinent clinical information, synthesis of information learned (text, class discussions, observation site), as well as a personal reaction to the process. Students must adhere to APA 5th Edition research format.

(Learning Outcomes 2, 3, 4, 5; written paper, rubric)

3. Research/Presentation: Students will collaborate in groups to research and present on a technique for the treatment of dysphagia. At least 75% of references should be from journals no older than 5 years.
(Learning Outcomes 2, 3, 4, 5; presentation, rubric)
4. Proficiency Exams: Each student will complete a mid-term and a final exam related to all assignments and activities of the course.
(Learning Outcomes 1-5; exams)

Evaluation Procedures:

Requirement	Points Assessed	Learning Outcomes	Assessment Outcomes
Dysphagia Assessment Interpretation	50	1,2,4,5	Rubric
Observation/Reaction Paper	100	1,2,3,4,5	Written paper, rubric
Research/ Presentation	100	4,5	Presentation, rubric
Proficiency Exams (2 @ 50 points each)	100	1-5	Examination
Total	350

Grading Policy:

- A (315-350 points)
- B (280-314 points)
- C (245-279 points)
- F (0-244 points)

Opportunities for extra credit will not be provided for this class. Work completed for another class is not acceptable for this class, although students may choose to build on something done for another class.

CLASS POLICIES

Please note:

As a reflection of university policy, this class is in compliance with all applicable federal, state, and local laws, including but not limited to, the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990, the Civil Rights act of 1964, the Equal Pay Act, the Age Discrimination in Employment Act, the Age Discrimination Act of 1975, Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 (to the Higher Education Act of 1965), the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, the Vietnam-Era Veterans Readjustment Assistance Act of 1974, and all amendments to the foregoing.

As advocates of both the letter and intent of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act, we will make every accommodation possible to support students with disabilities which may negatively impact academic performance. Students with disabilities should make arrangements for the appropriate adaptation or accommodation at the beginning of the semester.

1. Participation. Each student is expected to read assigned material prior to class and participate in class discussions.
2. Students are required to conduct themselves according to professional standards as discussed in class when conducting on-site observations.
3. Written work done outside of class or for quizzes must be reasonably correct in mechanics (e.g., spelling, grammar, punctuation, etc.). Points will be deducted for inadequate written work.
4. All typed assignments completed outside of class must be double-spaced, using Times or Times New Roman font, unless otherwise specified by the instructor. All font sizes for typed assignments must be size .12. Any font size less than .12 will be returned for re-typing to required font size.
5. In ALL work, use person-first language to be consistent with IDEA. Emphasize the person more than the disability (i.e., a child with mental retardation, NOT a mentally retarded child).
6. Student work will be returned as promptly as possible, but if you are absent when the work is handed back, you must pick up your work at the instructor's office.
7. Students who miss class (or any portion of class) are responsible for the content. Any student who misses a class has the responsibility for obtaining copies of notes, handouts, assignments, etc. from class members who were present. If additional assistance is still necessary, an appointment should be scheduled with the instructor. Class time is not to be used to go over material with students who missed class(es).
8. Submission of work taken directly from another source (e.g., lesson plan copied from a book, the Internet, or material developed by another student) will be considered plagiarism and grounds for no credit on the assignment unless properly credited. Students are encouraged to use a variety of resources in obtaining ideas and illustrations that will help complete assignments. See the APA Guide for the correct method to cite other authors' work.
9. Work submitted late will receive a 10-point reduction from the earned grade.
10. University policy requires that all students have regular access to a computer with at least a certain capability level (see Catalog, Student Handbook, etc.). All students are required to make use of technological advances in coursework. Students will be required to make use of computer resources in this class, including communication (e.g., class announcements) and accessing materials needed for class via the Internet and the UWG portal/pipeline. One component of the Meeting Simulation assignment will need to be submitted via e-mail, as will at least some of the Reading assignments. In addition, students should realize that formal communications from UWG will be sent through campus e-mail (myUWG); this e-mail needs to be checked regularly.

ACADEMIC HONESTY

Students are expected to adhere to the highest standards of academic honesty. Plagiarism occurs when a student uses or purchases ghost-written papers. It also occurs when a student utilizes the ideas of or information obtained from another person without giving credit to that person. If plagiarism or another act of academic dishonesty occurs, it will be dealt with in accordance with the academic misconduct policy as stated in the Student Handbook, Undergraduate Catalog, and Graduate Catalog.

CONCEPTUAL FRAMEWORK

The conceptual framework of the College of Education at UWG forms the basis on which programs, courses, experiences and outcomes are created. By incorporating the theme "Developing Educators for School Improvement," the College assumes responsibility for preparing educators who can positively influence school improvement through altering classrooms, schools, and school systems (transformational systemic change). Ten descriptors (decision-makers, leaders, lifelong learners, adaptive, collaborative, culturally sensitive, empathetic, knowledgeable, proactive, and reflective) are integral components of the conceptual framework and provide the basis for developing educators who are prepared to improve schools through strategic change. National principles (INTASC), propositions (NBPTS), and standards (Learned Societies) also are incorporated as criteria against which candidates are measured.

The mission of the College of Education is to develop educators who are prepared to function effectively in diverse educational settings with competencies that are instrumental to planning, implementing, assessing, and re-evaluating existing or proposed practices. This course's objectives are related directly to the conceptual framework and appropriate descriptors, principles or propositions and Learned Society standards are identified for each objective. Class activities and assessments that align with course objectives, course content, and the conceptual framework are identified in a separate section of the course syllabus.

LEARNING OUTCOMES

Link to American Speech, Language, and Hearing Association (ASHA) Knowledge and Skills Acquisition (KASA)

The ASHA KASA document details the Standards for the Certificate of Clinical Competence (SCCC). It is utilized to demonstrate compliance with accreditation standards related to preparing students to meet ASHA certification requirements. It covers nine main knowledge areas (articulation, fluency, voice and resonance, receptive/expressive language, hearing, swallowing, cognitive aspects, social aspects, and communication modalities) across five clinical parameters (etiology, characteristics, prevention, assessment, and intervention). Due to the importance of the KASA standards in tracking and documenting the student's achievement related to these knowledge areas and clinical parameters, they are directly related to the Learning Outcomes. Accordingly, the relevant Standard(s) are noted under each Learning Outcome. The relevant Conceptual Framework areas and NBPTS Propositions are also noted and discussed in more detail below.

Students will:

1. identify and describe educational philosophies and learning theories and their effects on speech/language pathology services (McCrea & Brasseur, 2000; Nicolosi, Harryman, & Krescheck, 2003)
(ASHA KASA Standard III-B; Knowledgeable; Lifelong Learners; NBPTS Standard 2);
2. summarize two articles detailing the principles of behavior modification and data collection as applied in speech-language pathology (Hedge & Davis, 1995; McCrea & Brasseur, 2000; Nicolosi et al., 2003)
(ASHA KASA Standard III-B; Collaborative, Culturally Sensitive, Empathetic, Lifelong Learners; NBPTS Standard 3);
3. identify and describe the etiologies and characteristics presented in three given speech and language scenarios, and discuss the preventative measures applicable to each scenario (Hedge & Davis, 1995; McCrea & Brasseur, 2000; Nicolosi et al., 2003)
(ASHA KASA Standard III-C; III-D; Decision Makers, Adaptive, Culturally Sensitive, Knowledgeable, Lifelong Learners; Proactive, Reflective; NBPTS Standards 2, 4);
4. identify and describe various procedures speech-language pathologists may utilize in counseling individuals with communicative disorders (Goldberg, 1993; Hedge & Davis, 1995; Nicolosi et al., 2003)
(ASHA III-D; IV-G; Collaborative, Culturally Sensitive, Empathetic; Lifelong Learners; NBPTS Standards 2, 4); and

5. demonstrate specified therapy techniques in the remediation of speech and language disorders (Goldberg, 1993; Hedge & Davis, 1995; McCrea & Brasseur, 2000; Mower, 1982; Nicolosi et al., 2003)
(ASHA KASA Standard III-D; IV-G; Decision Makers, Leaders, Culturally Sensitive, Knowledgeable, Lifelong Learners; Proactive, Reflective; NBPTS Standards 2, 4).

NBPTS* refers to standards of the National Board for Professional Teaching Standards, a set of standards adopted for graduate education programs in the College of Education; information on the Five Core Propositions is available from:

ACTIVITIES AND ASSESSMENTS, EVALUATION PROCEDURES, AND GRADING POLICY

Link to Conceptual Framework: This course is designed to provide future speech-language pathologists with the information, techniques, and practical application skills to be successful in working with children and adults with disabilities in various areas of language-based communication disorders. At the end of the course, candidates will demonstrate skills for Decision Makers: determining the direction of current trends in the profession for articulation and phonological disorders (assignments 1, 2, 3, 4, 5), Leaders: guiding intervention directions in the profession (assignments 1, 2, 3), Lifelong Learners: promoting skills for continual scrutiny of professional treatments (assignment 1, 2, 3, 4), Adaptive performances: changing trends and directions as dictated by research-based findings for articulation and phonological disorders (assignments 1, 2, 3, 4, 5), Collaborative: working with peers to help determine best practices and trends for serving language, articulation and phonological clients (assignments 4, 5), Culturally Sensitive: considering the impacts of cultural backgrounds on intervention needs (assignments 3, 4, 5), Empathetic: understanding and accepting the individual and group needs related to treatment (assignments 3, 4, 5), Knowledgeable: versed in the theories, and practical applications of research-based techniques (assignments 1, 2, 3, 4, 5), Proactive: able to accurately predict implications for future intervention strategies in the profession (assignments 1, 2, 3, 4, 5), and Reflective: using research findings to appropriately guide daily practice in serving language, articulation and phonological clients (assignments 1, 2, 3, 4, 5).

Activities and Assessments:

1. Materials development:

- a. Therapy Kit: Each student is expected to accumulate the materials necessary to stock his/her therapy kit. A list for the contents of the therapy kit will be distributed in class. (20 points)
(Learning Outcome 5, project)
- b. Card File: Each student is expected to develop a card file to target phonemes for traditional articulation therapy. Format for the Card File to be given in class. (10 points)
(Learning Outcome 5, project)

2. Data Collection Forms: Each student will compile data collection forms related to therapy demonstrations in class and will complete a sequence of one specified form as directed in class. (20 points)
(Learning Outcome 2, written product)

3. Journal article review: Each student will review a journal article addressing normal speech and language development and write a summary of the article. Each student will present the summary in class. Summaries must be typed. Classroom presentation of the article summary must be accompanied by at least one audio-visual support (handout, overhead, model, PowerPoint presentation, etc.), and professional presentation skills will be evaluated for the following: accuracy of information, professional poise, professional dress, flow of information (avoid non-semantic fillers), eye contact and general effectiveness of presentation. (Article choices will be discussed in class.) (50 points)
(Learning Outcomes 1, 2, written paper)

4. Video Demonstrations. Each student will demonstrate two assigned types of therapy intervention in a 20-minute therapy session for each technique: (1) Traditional Articulation Therapy; and (2) Language-based Therapy (including goals/objectives, activities, data collection method, procedures, reinforcement). The therapy sessions will be video recorded and presented to the class before being turned in for grading. (100 points total, 50 per session)
(Learning Outcome 5, observation)

5. Quizzes: Each student will be administered two quizzes to assess progress in therapy skills. (50 points each)
(Learning Outcomes 1-5; exams)

Evaluation Procedures:

Materials development	-	30 points
Data collection forms	-	20 points
Journal article review	-	50 points
Video demonstrations	-	100 points
Quizzes	-	100 points
Total Points		300 points

Grading Policy:

- A 270-300 points
B 240-269 points
C 210-239 points
F 0-209 points

Opportunities for extra credit will not be provided for this class. Work completed for another class is not acceptable for this class, although students may choose to build on something done for another class.

CLASS POLICIES

Please note:

As a reflection of university policy, this class is in compliance with all applicable federal, state, and local laws, including but not limited to, the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990, the Civil Rights act of 1964, the Equal Pay Act, the Age Discrimination in Employment Act, the Age Discrimination Act of 1975, Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 (to the Higher Education Act of 1965), the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, the Vietnam-Era Veterans Readjustment Assistance Act of 1974, and all amendments to the foregoing.

As advocates of both the letter and intent of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act, we will make every accommodation possible to support students with disabilities which may negatively impact academic performance. Students with disabilities should make arrangements for the appropriate adaptation or accommodation at the beginning of the semester.

1. Participation. Each student is expected to read assigned material prior to class and participate in class discussions.
2. Students are required to conduct themselves according to professional standards as discussed in class when conducting on-site observations.

3. Written work done outside of class on for quizzes must be reasonably correct in mechanics (e.g., spelling, grammar, punctuation, etc.). Points will be deducted for inadequate written work.
4. All typed assignments completed outside of class must be double-spaced, using Times, Times New Roman, or Arial font, unless other specified by the instructor. All font sizes for typed assignments must be size .12. Any font size less than .12 will be returned for re-typing to required font size.
5. In ALL work, use person-first language to be consistent with IDEA. Emphasize the person more than the disability (i.e., a child with mental retardation, NOT a mentally retarded child).
6. Student work will be returned as promptly as possible, but if you are absent when the work is handed back, you must pick up your work at the instructor's office.
7. Students who miss class (or any portion of class) are responsible for the content. Any student who misses a class has the responsibility for obtaining copies of notes, handouts, assignments, etc. from class members who were present. If additional assistance is still necessary, an appointment should be scheduled with the instructor. Class time is not to be used to go over material with students who missed class(es).
8. Submission of work taken directly from another source (e.g., lesson plan copied from a book, the Internet, or material developed by another student) will be considered plagiarism and grounds for no credit on the assignment unless properly credited. Students are encouraged to use a variety of resources in obtaining ideas and illustrations that will help complete assignments. See the APA Guide for the correct method to cite other authors' work.
9. Work submitted late will receive a 10-point reduction from the earned grade.
10. University policy requires that all students have regular access to a computer with at least a certain capability level (see Catalog, Student Handbook, etc.). All students are required to make use of technological advances in coursework. Students will be required to make use of computer resources in this class, including communication (e.g., class announcements) and accessing materials needed for class via the Internet and the UWG portal/pipeline. One component of the Meeting Simulation assignment will need to be submitted via e-mail, as will at least some of the Reading assignments. In addition, students should realize that formal communications from UWG will be sent through campus e-mail (myUWG); this e-mail needs to be checked regularly.

ACADEMIC HONESTY

Students are expected to adhere to the highest standards of academic honesty. Plagiarism occurs when a student uses or purchases ghost-written papers. It also occurs when a student utilizes the ideas of or information obtained from another person without giving credit to that person. If plagiarism or another act of academic dishonesty occurs, it will be dealt with in accordance with the academic misconduct policy as stated in the Student Handbook, Undergraduate Catalog, and Graduate Catalog.

Rationale for Course Change

SLPA 6798

October 11, 2007

All courses in the Speech-Language Pathology (SLPA) program were modified, added, or deleted in response to requirements of the American Speech-Language Hearing Association's (ASHA) accreditation requirements. For purposes of the ASHA application process, all courses contain Learning Outcomes that are linked to ASHA's Knowledge and Skills (KASAs). In order to align with the newly approved ASHA program, this course is being changed in the following manner:

- This course will be deleted and merged with the student teaching internship experience.
